

"WET" CASES BLOCKADE FEDERAL CALENDAR

DISTRICT ATTORNEY OF NEW YORK IN A RECENT ADDRESS

E. T. BUCKNER SAYS PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT MIGHT AS WELL TAKE VACATION

FEDERAL COURTS SO CROWDED WITH LITIGATION THAT PROGRESS IS IMPOSSIBLE

(By United Press)
New York, July 8.—Prohibition enforcement might as well take its summer vacation as far as progress against bootleggers and rumrunners in this section of the country is concerned, E. T. Buckner, district attorney, told the Rotary club at a banquet.

The federal courts are so crowded, said Buckner, that progress becomes impossible.

The district attorney started in on a padlock campaign, closing many famous night clubs along Broadway recently. He maintained that arrests and seizures were ineffective when the case was lost in the mass upon the federal calendar.

NO CONGESTED COURTS IN MINNESOTA

St. Paul, July 8.—Minnesota bootleggers have not been afforded the loophole of congested court dockets complained of in New York. Federal courts in this district can handle all the liquor cases placed on the docket, according to Lafayette French, Jr., United States district attorney.

"We are still able to accommodate all violators of the dry act," French said this morning. "Our dockets are clear today for the first time in several years due to the addition of judges in this circuit."

"Minnesota has an advantage over New York because of the state option law which provides that cases investigated by state officers shall be tried in state courts. All liquor cases in New York are tried in the federal courts, crowding the dockets."

OTHER U. S. DISTRICT ATTORNEYS DISAGREE

United States district attorneys in representative communities throughout the country disagreed with United States District Attorney Emory Buckner of New York in his recent statement that prohibition enforcement has been crippled by clogged calendars of United States courts.

A survey of the United Press showed that in no city but New York do bootleggers benefit by crowded court dockets. Department of Justice agents at Washington, however, said that more than 23,000 liquor cases were clogged in federal courts at the end of the last fiscal year, June 30th. Liquor cases in federal courts during the past year, they said, comprised more than 50,000 of all federal cases.

RALPH W. INCE TO WED VENEZUELA GIRL

New York, July 8.—Lucila Mendez, dancing and screen star and daughter of the late Cipriano Castro, dictator of Venezuela, has been cast by Ralph W. Ince, motion picture producer, for the role of his bride. Ince was divorced last week in Los Angeles by a sister of Anita Stewart. A month ago, Mrs. Ince obtained a judgment for $9,661 under a separation agreement. Miss Mendez jumped quickly to stardom from the chorus as the result of her dancing antics. Recently she had been in the films under Mr. Ince's direction.—Minneapolis Tribune.

UNUSUAL NATURAL PHENOMENON

VAST AREAS OF GLOBE PASSING THROUGH SUCH A REIGN

EARTHQUAKES, FLOODS, STORMS AND HEAT WAVES

(By United Press)
Vast areas of the globe are passing through a reign of unusual natural phenomenon.

Earthquakes, floods, storms and heat waves have made their visitation upon humanity the past week in extraordinary violence. Following earthquakes in California and Japan, new earth shocks were reported today from Nagoya, Japan, and from Italy. Some of these latter caused panic, but apparently took no toll of human life.

Tremendous floods raged in Poland. Today word of violent rain storms in one city of Italy tells of considerable damage from the water. In America, a heat wave holds great districts in its grip. In western America, there is apprehension lest more earth shocks come.

Professor Rafael Bendani of Italy told the United Press that another period of quakes is due in July, reaching its peak about the middle of the month.

GRAIN FUTURES ARE BOOSTED

INFLUENTIAL BULLS GIVE SHARP UPWARD TREND TO CHICAGO MARKET

(By United Press)
Chicago, July 8.—Influential bulls boosted grain futures to a sharply higher close on the Chicago board of trade today. Buying in wheat was based mainly on the apprehensive crop situation in the spring wheat belt. Advice received in Michigan told of the alarming spread of black rust in some sections and fear of damage in case the present hot wave continued. Weather forecasts promised no immediate relief. Light receipts sent corn soaring.

BOOZE RUNNERS USE MACHINE GUN, KILL DEPUTY IN BATTLE

Watsonville, Calif., July 8.—A deputy sheriff was killed and two other officers wounded in a battle between rum runners, armed with a machine gun, and a large posse near Monterey Bay. The smugglers were reported surrounded and a troop of United States cavalry was called from the Presidio of Monterey to attack them. Meanwhile a coast guard cutter is patrolling the shore line to prevent the liquor runners from running their boat across the bay. N. Balm, Salinas merchant and a deputy sheriff, was killed in the battle in the night. Sheriff Oyer and State Traffic Officer Henry Livingston were shot through the legs.

The booze band's casualties are not known.

With machine gun mounted on an automobile the desperadoes kept the officers at bay during the night.

DEFINES GREAT ISSUE IN THE SCOPES TRIAL

IS NOT WHETHER EVOLUTION IS OR IS NOT TRUE, SAYS JOHN R. NEAL

BUT WHETHER STATE OF TENNESSEE HAS TRANSCENDED LIMITS OF CONSTITUTION

(By United Press)
Dayton, Tenn., July 8.—The great issue in the Scopes' evolution case is not whether evolution is or is not true, but whether the State of Tennessee has not transcended the limits of its own constitution and that of the United States, John R. Neal, senior defense counsel, said today in a reply to William Jennings Bryan's speech of last night.

A constitutional amendment banishing forever the evolutionary theory from all American schools forever is the distant goal of organized fundamentalism.

It seemed that the proceedings in the Scopes trial which will start in this little town Friday are only the first, faint rumblings of a major battle that ultimately may be fought by the entire American nation.

William Jennings Bryan, mainstay of the prosecution of Scopes, flung down the gage of battle in an address to the progressive Dayton club at the Aqua Hotel last night.

If the Tennessee anti-evolution law is held invalid in the lower court, he said, it would be appealed through all stages to Washington. If the United States supreme court holds it unconstitutional, it will be appealed to the American people.

The defense today was discussing the possibility of challenging a number of the jury panel when the trial opens because several were present and applauded the commoner.

The principal activity in Dayton today was an extended conference of prosecution counsel with Bryan mapping out the case. E. T. Stewart, attorney-general for the 18th Tennessee circuit, arrived here today and brought the prosecution staff to full strength. The defense is marking time awaiting the coming of Clarence Darrow, Bainbridge Colby and Dudley Field Malone. Darrow leaves Chicago at noon today and will get here about noon tomorrow. Colby's plans are not known.

The program for the trial has begun to take shape. At least two days, Friday and Saturday, and possibly Monday and Tuesday next week are to be occupied in selection of the jury. Judge Neal said today the jury would be picked by the defense with every care.

With the jury in its little swivel chairs, the legal struggle will be opened with argument on the defense's motion to dismiss the indictment. This may open the way to several days of general argument as the action is based on the federal constitutional guaranties.

BAINBRIDGE COLBY WITHDRAWS FROM CASE

Dayton, Tenn., July 8.—Bainbridge Colby, constitutional lawyer and one of the staff of counsel for the defense of John Thomas Scopes, today notified John R. Neal, senior defense counsel, that he would be unable to participate in the case.

Colby based his withdrawal on the necessity for his remaining in New York due to decision of the New York intermediate appellate court holding the New York City home rule amendment unconstitutional. Colby is one of the counsel for the city.

"It brings into the question an extensive amount of municipal legislation based upon the amendment and a very confused situation has arisen involving close study and requiring numerous and immediate conferences with the city officials and others," Colby wired Field.

JUNE RAINFALL SETS NEW MARKS

FARIBAULT REPORTS 15.94 INCHES OF RAIN—3.96 IS STATE AVERAGE

St. Paul, July 8.—An unofficial telegraphic survey of rainfall in Minnesota during June indicated today that the state has just ended an exceptionally wet month with record breaking precipitation reported from several communities.

While the average rainfall for 33 reporting communities was 8.17 inches, the heavy precipitation has not damaged crops generally to any extent, except corn, which is reported as having been "retarded." The official normal rainfall for Minnesota for June, as recorded by the U. S. weather bureau station at Minneapolis is 3.96 inches.

The survey includes representative communities in the agricultural districts and while it is not compiled from official government figures the reports are considered fairly accurate, and reliable.

In many sections it rained on more than 21 days of the month, while others reported heavy rainfalls of short duration, which brought their average well above normal.

To Faribault goes the "laurels" for the heaviest rainfall of any of the cities reporting. There the unofficial record was 15.94 inches of rain. Crops suffered in that section. Because of the fact that records are not kept in many municipalities, it was impossible to compare last month's precipitation with previous years. Running Faribault a close second was Northfield with a total fall, according to records of the Goodsell observatory at Carleton college, of 14.43 inches during the month. It rained on 14 days of the month at Northfield.

Other sections reporting more than 10 inches of rainfall during the month were:

Mankato 10.47; Dodge Center, 10.65, and Owatonna, 10. The average for the reporting cities was 8.17.

The southern and central sections were drenched probably more thoroughly, the reports indicate, than the northern and eastern, although the northwestern part of the state along the Red river was visited with heavy precipitation, which damaged some crops materially.

FELL 40 FEET FROM A SILO

LANDED ON PILE OF BOARDS, BOUNCED UP 4 FEET, NO BONES BROKEN

(By United Press)
Austin, July 7.—"Here we go," exclaimed Eugene Earl, Austin, as he ripped the last board from the roof of the silo he was helping to wreck. He threw one leg over the top staves, lost his balance and fell 40 feet to the pile of boards below.

Lying apparently dead for a few minutes, Earl finally showed feeble signs of life and sat up complaining that he had lost his false teeth. He is now in a hospital here badly bruised, but not seriously injured. Chester Nelson, a fellow workman, said Earl rebounded four feet when he struck the boards which probably broke his fall and saved his life. Nails entered his clothing but none pierced his skin.

EVOLUTION AMONG LIVING THINGS IS SEEN UNDER LENS

DR. H. S. JENNINGS IS FIRST ACTUALLY TO WATCH PROGRESS IN LIFE

THOUGHT OF SPECIAL SIGNIFICANCE IN VIEW OF TRIAL OF JOHN T. SCOPES

Baltimore, Md., July 8.—Dr. Herbert Spencer Jennings, professor of zoology, and director at Johns Hopkins university here, is the "first actually to see and to control the progress of evolution among living things."

The statement is contained in a newly published report of biological activities at Johns Hopkins university and is considered by scientists at the institution as being of special significance in view of the coming trial of John T. Scopes, charged with the teaching of evolution in violation of the Tennessee statutes.

"The evidence of evolution," the report declares, "had been read in the rocks and the structures of plants and animals, but under the microscope Dr. Jennings was able to follow evolution not as a theory but as a thing that was actually taking place."

Dr. Jennings has shown, the scientists believe, that living things as observed from the one-celled animals are not static, but developed.

"Interested study," Dr. Jennings declares, "reveals that the hereditary characteristics do become changed by external conditions. Through such diversities, continuing for great numbers of generations single stocks, uniform in their hereditary characteristics, gradually differentiate into many faintly differing hereditary features. Again the process is gradual, or by steps so small that single ones are imperceptible."

"In higher organisms the state of knowledge on this point appears less satisfactory. But the evidence so far as it goes indicates that the processes here are in agreement with those in lower organisms."

"Apparently diversities in external agents may, under conditions which seem rarely met, so modify the germ cells that they produce progeny with changed hereditary characteristics. All together, we find that even independently of any mating process diversity of stocks is being produced but most slowly and gradually."—Minneapolis Tribune.

PIG MARKET IS ENCOURAGING FOR NEXT SPRING

(By United Press)
St. Paul, Minn., July 8.—Prospects for "bumper prices" on the pig market next spring were brightened today by the report of a survey of conditions in the corn-belt district.

The announcement was made by Andrew Boss, vice director of the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment station who conducted the territorial survey.

The corn-belt reports indicate that the pig crop this spring showed a decrease of six to eight million pigs from the 1924 mark and 13 to 15 million pigs from the 1913 record.

"Indications are that the number of pigs marketed this winter will be less than for the past two years," Boss said. "Such conditions should lead to good prices for well finished hogs."

"Not only does the present situation point to the wisdom of breeding for fall farrowing but raising two litters a year from a sow reduces the cost per pig. Pigs farrowed in the late summer or early fall have a better chance of being saved while prices of corn and other grains are likely to be down in the winter months, making feed cheaper."

"Owing to present conditions indications are that fall farrowing, which has not been popular, will increase this year."

ROCKEFELLER CELEBRATES 86TH BIRTHDAY

EVENT IS FAMILY AFFAIR AT HIS POCANTICO HILLS HOME

PLEASED OVER GRANDDAUGHTER'S WEDDING, AND THAT HE'S PLAYING GOOD GOLF

(By United Press)
Tarrytown, N. Y., July 8.—One of the world's optimists reached his 86th birthday today looking back upon a full year.

To him the outstanding facts were that his favorite granddaughter had married the man of her choice with his approval, and that he had gotten his irons working and was playing the best golf of his life.

John D. Rockefeller's countless millions were not in evidence in his birthday party out at Pocantico hills. It was a family affair with just a few shiny dimes for the neighbor children to mark the occasion and few ribboned packages with little personal gifts from his own children and grandchildren piled beside the birthday tray. Rockefeller's fingers itched for the feel of his favorite maulie and his birthday program led off with nine holes of golf on his own private course.

Department of Justice agents at Washington, however, said that more than 23,000 liquor cases were clogged in federal courts at the end of the last fiscal year, June 30th. Liquor cases in federal courts during the past year, they said, comprised more than 50,000 of all federal cases.

DEFINES GREAT ISSUE IN THE SCOPES TRIAL

JUNE RAINFALL SETS NEW MARKS

FARIBAUT REPORTS 15.94 INCHES OF RAIN—3.96 IS STATE AVERAGE

St. Paul, July 8.—An unofficial telegraphic survey of rainfall in Minnesota during June indicated today that the state has just ended an exceptionally wet month with record breaking precipitation reported from several communities.

While the average rainfall for 33 reporting communities was 8.17 inches, the heavy precipitation has not damaged crops generally to any extent, except corn, which is reported as having been "retarded." The official normal rainfall for Minnesota for June, as recorded by the U. S. weather bureau station at Minneapolis is 3.96 inches.

The survey includes representative communities in the agricultural districts and while it is not compiled from official government figures the reports are considered fairly accurate, and reliable.

In many sections it rained on more than 21 days of the month, while others reported heavy rainfalls of short duration, which brought their average well above normal.

Other sections reporting more than 10 inches of rainfall during the month were:

Mankato 10.47; Dodge Center, 10.65, and Owatonna, 10. The average for the reporting cities was 8.17.

The southern and central sections were drenched probably more thoroughly, the reports indicate, than the northern and eastern, although the northwestern part of the state along the Red river was visited with heavy precipitation, which damaged some crops materially.

EVOLUTION AMONG LIVING THINGS IS SEEN UNDER LENS

DR. H. S. JENNINGS IS FIRST ACTUALLY TO WATCH PROGRESS IN LIFE

THOUGHT OF SPECIAL SIGNIFICANCE IN VIEW OF TRIAL OF JOHN T. SCOPES

Baltimore, Md., July 8.—Dr. Herbert Spencer Jennings, professor of zoology, and director at Johns Hopkins university here, is the "first actually to see and to control the progress of evolution among living things."

The statement is contained in a newly published report of biological activities at Johns Hopkins university and is considered by scientists at the institution as being of special significance in view of the coming trial of John T. "The evidence of evolution," the report declares, "has been read in the rocks and the structures of plants and animals, but under the microscope Dr. Jennings was able to follow evolution not as a theory but as a thing that was actually taking place."

PIG MARKET IS ENCOURAGING FOR NEXT SPRING

(By United Press)
St. Paul, Minn., July 8.—Prospects for "bumper prices" on the pig market next spring were brightened today by the report of a survey of conditions in the corn-belt district.

The announcement was made by Andrew Boss, vice director of the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment station who conducted the territorial survey.

The corn-belt reports indicate that the pig crop this spring showed a decrease of six to eight million pigs from the 1924 mark and 13 to 15 million pigs from the 1913 record.

"Indications are that the number of pigs marketed this winter will be less than for the past two years," Boss said. "Such conditions should lead to good prices for well finished hogs."

"Not only does the present situation point to the wisdom of breeding for fall farrowing but raising two litters a year from a sow reduces the cost per pig. Pigs farrowed in the late summer or early fall have a better chance of being saved while prices of corn and other grains are likely to be down in the winter months, making feed cheaper."

"Owing to present conditions indications are that fall farrowing, which has not been popular, will increase this year."

ROCKEFELLER CELEBRATES 86TH BIRTHDAY

EVENT IS FAMILY AFFAIR AT HIS POCANTICO HILLS HOME

PLEASED OVER GRANDDAUGHTER'S WEDDING, AND THAT HE'S PLAYING GOOD GOLF

(By United Press)
Tarrytown, N. Y., July 8.—One of the world's optimists reached his 86th birthday today looking back upon a full year.

To him the outstanding facts were that his favorite granddaughter had married the man of her choice with his approval, and that he had gotten his irons working and was playing the best golf of his life.

John D. Rockefeller's countless millions were not in evidence in his birthday party out at Pocantico hills. It was a family affair with just a few shiny dimes for the neighborhood children to mark the occasion and few ribboned packages with little personal gifts from his own children and grandchildren piled beside the birthday tray. Rockefeller's fingers itched for the feel of his favorite masher and his birthday program led off with nine holes of golf on his own private course.

WOULD-BE SUICIDE SLASHED THROAT AND BOTH WRISTS

(By United Press)
Chisholm, July 8.—The butcher knife which Emil Paskonen drew across his throat barely missed his jugular vein. He also slashed both wrists. Pelican Rapids-Detroit
Paving Damaged by Storm

Fergus Falls, Minn., July 8.—The heavy rains which visited this vicinity Monday and extended north of Pelican Rapids caused damage to the new pavement between that village and Detroit, where large gaps were washed out in the grading, leaving the cement surfaces virtually without support. On low places the water was reported from one to five feet deep. Hundreds of tourist cars were stalled. Considerable damage was done to the barley and clover fields in the neighborhood of Deer Creek, where the rainfall was the heaviest this year. The rainfall in Fergus Falls was .84 of an inch and was accompanied by a severe electrical storm.

Henry Dongoske, Ex-Service Man, In Critical Condition at Local Hospital

RELATIVES ARE SENT FOR

Young Man Had Been Fishing at Vergas And on Way to Maple
Plain When Accident Occurred

Henry Dongoske, age 30, and single, of Maple Plain, who accidentally shot himself with a revolver while touring near Brainerd, lies at St. Joseph's hospital in a critical condition. He spent a fairly good night, however, last night, it is reported.

Dongoske is an ex-service man, who was in France, and for a time was in ill health following the World War. Recently he motored to Minneapolis, where he visited his sister, Mrs. Ward Bentley, at 2917 30th avenue, South.

From there he motored to Vergas and visited his uncle over the Fourth of July. He left Vergas on Tuesday with 15 pounds of fish that he had caught and which he was taking to his mother at Maple Plain.

Stopping his car for lunch near Lincoln, and while handling his revolver, he accidentally shot himself, according to the story he told to physicians. He said that he did not feel the first bullet, but before he knew it, two more followed, so that three bullets, as later ascertained in the local hospital had entered his left breast near his heart puncturing his left lung.

The injured man drove to the Nelson hardware store at Lincoln arriving there at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning, inquiring for a doctor. Mr. Nelson told him that the nearest doctor was at Motley, and Dongoske continued to that village. The doctor there, upon examining his injuries, rushed him to the Brainerd hospital.

He has relatives at Hill City and in Minneapolis, and they are now with him. Internal hemorrhages are occurring and his life is despaired of. However he was said to be resting well and was not suffering at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Support for Plant Stalk

A charming support to hold steady the stalk of a plant in a pot consists of a slender stick with a painted wooden bird nailed or glued at its top. Such a bird may be cut, in silhouette, from thin soft wood and painted in bright colors with oil or house paints, and afterward varnished. Even though the work is somewhat roughly done, the effect will still be good.

Have the Same Meaning

The words "flue" and "chimney" may be used interchangeably, but the word "chimney" usually has reference to the upright structure of brick, stone or the like that extends some distance above a building; it also has reference to the funnel or stack of a steam boiler. The word "flue" is the channel or passage for smoke, air and the gases of combustion to pass through.

She was stricken up on returning from a fishing trip on Sunday afternoon, and died the next morning.

The deceased was born near Montreal, Canada, April 1st, 1860, and has been a resident of the United States for the past 40 years, residing at St. Cloud before moving to Crow Wing county, about four years ago.

She was first married to Frank Lamkin, deceased, and later to Charles Leese, who with her children survive her.

Ten children were born to her first union, eight sons and two daughters, one son preceding his mother in death. The children are Frank Lamkin, of Jamestown, N. D.; Fred and Napoleon, of Duluth; William, Peter and Hubert, of Brainerd; and Levy, of Sauk Rapids. Mrs. Mary Dugan and George Lamkin, of Brainerd, and Mrs. Mamie Eltrich, of Warsaw, Wis. J. C. PENNEY COMPANY GOES ON GROWING

The growth and expansion of the institution of J. C. Penney company stores goes on, apparently without the slightest thought of halting. Manager R. E. Wyatt of the local store has just announced that the organization is opening 105 additional stores this year, the majority of which will be in the east. Three new states will be entered—Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire. By the time the fatted turkey is prepared for the Thanksgiving Day dinner, the company expects to have 676 stores in operation in 44 states. Only Rhode Island, Vermont, Delaware and Florida will then remain outside the J. C. Penney company fold.

ADVERTISING AIDS ALL

NEWSPAPER advertising and the automobile have combined to bring the city shops to the very door of the farm house. Each day the newspapers bring a complete quotation of what can be bought, where it can be purchased and the prices at which it can be purchased. The sale is actually made through the advertising columns of the newspaper, argues the St. Cloud Daily Times. A visit to the store next day by automobile completes the exchange of money for merchandise.

How much more convenient is this contrivance of modern commercial and industrial genius to the inefficient method of our rural forbears who knew only their personal needs. With them there was no alternative for the slow, tedious and disappointing expedient of going to town by wagon or cart and trusting to diligence and a stout pair of shoes to seek out the shop which sold that which they were in need of and which sold it at an acceptable price, if not at the lowest obtainable price.

The merchants in the cities and towns need not have debated over the inroads of the mail order houses before the day of the automobile and of persistent newspaper advertising. The mail order houses provided the rural and suburban buyer with a store—if only on paper—in which to plan his buying. Newspaper advertising is now offering the service formerly offered by the catalogs of the mail order houses but in addition is furnishing this service daily instead of twice yearly, is giving the buyer the choice of prices and goods of all merchants not those of one, and is rendering a valuable 24-hour service in assisting the public to determine its wants.

THAT EVOLUTION TRIAL

THE evolution trial in Dayton, Tennessee, seems to have lost its solemn setting and to have degenerated into a publicity-seeking measure, so far as Dayton is concerned.

William Jennings Bryan arrived in Dayton and the local brass band turned out to greet him. The ballyhoo deplored by the dignified counsel for the defense seems to have got its start. "Hot dog" and other refreshment stands are springing up like mushrooms. A local clothier named Darwin added an explanatory sign to his store front announcing that "Darwin is Right."

The mountain folks of Tennessee are plain-spoken people and they call the whole litigation a "monkey trial."

Just when Dayton was basking in the lime light and occupying front page space in the newspapers, the town of Cookeville tried to steal a march and appropriate "their" trial. But Federal Judge John J. Gore refused to grant an injunction against the trial of the Scopes evolution case in the state courts at Dayton, and so all Dayton breathes easier today.

The jury which will eventually decide the case should come in for some consideration. They will hear the lengthiest, most learned addresses any jury ever heard. They will hear terms, definitions, expert testimony of all kinds that will tax even the official stenographers to record. Our sympathy goes out to that jury.

SETTING OLD-TIME EDITORIALS

WHEN the old boys at the Union Printers Home in Colorado staged a type-setting contest, they used the old implements of the trade and eschewed linotypes. To make all surroundings perfectly congenial, they were given copy in the shape of the old-time flamboyant editorial, which spouted its train of thought in this vituperative strain:

"We note by the columns of a scurrilous contemporary that certain views of ours touching the welfare of this flourishing commonwealth are being impugned in certain quarters. We wish to state that we have never been sought by the sheriff in connection with a dastardly crime—to wit: horse-stealing. We never left a town ahead of a mob with a rope. We never were convicted of beating our mother, nor of deserting a wife and seven children. We name no names, but we want to ask if a certain editorial renegade, temporarily sojourning here, can say the same. Next week, full particulars—IF NECESSARY!"

RECOGNIZING THE TOURISTS

THE Brainerd Country club is to be commended for inaugurating its tourist tournament Sunday, July 19. Every effort has been made to attract these people to the tournament and to assure them that Brainerd hospitality as exemplified by the local Country club is something to be appreciated.

An attractive list of prizes has been accumulated, well worthy the consideration of every tourist golfer.

THE average editor can meet an irate subscriber and get away with it; he can even meet the man who doesn't like his editorials and enjoy the meeting, but the hardest thing for him to meet is the Saturday night payroll, says Heinie Mitchell of the Bemidji Daily Pioneer.

THE Anoka Herald recently carried an editorial saying unkind things about the motor tourists. Exception has been taken by many newspapers. The Anoka Herald man must have had a grouch when he wrote it.

SERGEANT JOSEPH CIGICH of Kansas City, Kansas, is said to speak seven languages. His wife, however, probably does not give him the chance to use all of them.

WE had dinner with a farmer family in the country the other day and the housewife remarked that many a great chef would lose his job forever if he lost his can opener.

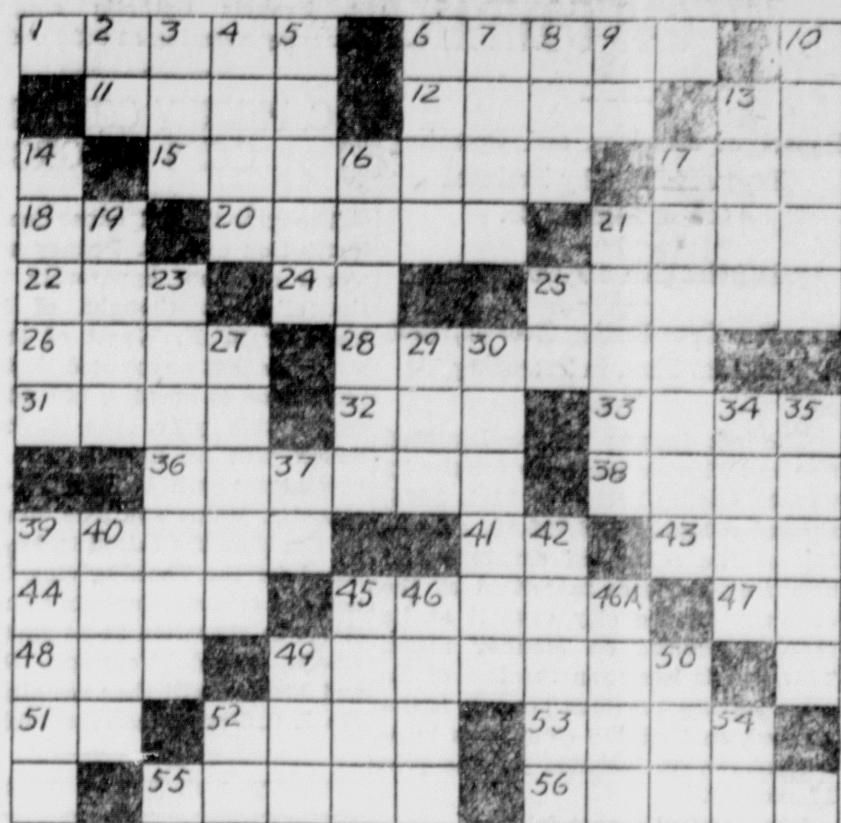

CHIEF BENDER, born in Brainerd, and once a teammate of Les Bush on the Athletics, is now coach on the Chicago White Sox team.

THE quiet manager in baseball is winning victories. This resembles the "quiet" better-half manager who also wins victories at home.

THE recent earthquake did a funny stunt out in Montana where it created a lake. A landslide dammed a mountain stream.

No doubt the Chicago Tribune, now housed in a 36-story building, may be properly accused of printing some "tall" stories.

"SOME WILD NOTIONS I HAVE KNOWN"

By the REV. ROY L. SMITH, D. D.
Pastor Simpson M. E. Church, Minneapolis

"SILENCE IS GOLDEN"

Some men boast of their ability to speak in four languages, others of their ability to keep silent in twenty.

But silence is not always a sign of strength. Sometimes it is a sign of cowardice.

When "right is on the scaffold and wrong is on the throne," to keep silent is to betray one's honor, to kill one's self-respect.

Patrick Henry, Savonarola, John Knox, Samuel Adams, Cardinal Mercier and thousands of humble and nameless have scorned a golden silence for dangerous but heroic speech and have died with their souls clean of self-reproach.

Silence is sometimes ignorance.

Lincoln's Gettysburg address received no editorial mention in any of the leading periodicals of that day. It remained for the next generation to discover the immortal beauty of that greatest of American utterances.

Roman historians either completely ignore Jesus of Nazareth or dismiss him with a single line. Yet "He lifted the gates of empires off their hinges and turned the stream of civilization into new channels."

Silence is sometimes selfish.

A gentle word of sympathy for a friend in distress is the mark of sincere friendship. A strong word of courage for a tempted youth is the glorious privilege of the righteous man. A reverent word of faith in an hour of uncertainty and doubt may set a life going in the way of large usefulness. A letter of appreciation to an honest official may turn the tide of public affairs.

An unselfish and heroic use of speech is a gift more precious than gold.

FAMOUS FORTS IN U. S. HISTORY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Where the Power of the Sioux Was Broken.

In 1874 there was established near the Red Cloud agency in the northwestern corner of Nebraska a military post which is historically important because around it centered the events which broke forever the power of the Sioux and their allies, the Northern Cheyenne. Fort Robinson was its name and its presence in the midst of the Ogala Sioux kept thousands of them from joining the hostiles at the opening of the Sioux war of 1876-77.

Near it in October, 1876, General Crook further clipped their wings by surrounding the camp of old Chief Red Cloud and disarming and dismounting his warriors. From it the next month Col. Ranald S. Mackenzie led the expedition which defeated Chief Dull Knife and his Cheyennes, destroyed their village on the Crazy Woman's fork of the Powder river and secured the first real success in the campaign. There, too, Crazy Horse, the young war chief of the Ogala, fell mortally wounded when he resisted an attempt to imprison him.

Perhaps the most dramatic incident connected with the history of Fort Robinson was the outbreak of the Cheyennes in 1879. Dull Knife's Cheyennes had been sent to Oklahoma but they hated their new home and jumped the reservation. After successfully eluding pursuit for several hundred miles, they were finally captured and taken to Fort Robinson. When told they must return to Oklahoma, they again attempted to break away. Many of them were shot down as they tried to escape from the fort, the remainder were recaptured and again they were returned to the hated Southland. So Fort Robinson marked the end of the Cheyennes as a warrior people, just as it did the Sioux.

The usefulness of Fort Robinson passed away with the end of the Indian wars. Today it is a place of ghosts—ghosts of the redmen and white who once helped make it famous. Near it are buried two renowned scouts—California Joe and Baptiste Garnier, the "Little Bat" of Sioux war days, both victims of an assassin. Somewhere near the fort, too, sleeps Crazy Horse in a secret burying place of which it has been said: "Just as the grave of General Custer on the barren hill above the Little Big Horn was the high-water mark of Indian supremacy in the trans-Missouri region, so the forgotten grave of Crazy Horse marks the ebb from which no tide has ever risen."

They will hear terms, definitions, expert testimony of all kinds that will tax even the official stenographers to record. Our sympathy goes out to that jury.

SETTING OLD-TIME EDITORIALS

WHEN the old boys at the Union Printers Home in Colorado staged a type-setting contest, they used the old implements of the trade and eschewed linotypes. To make all surroundings perfectly congenial, they were given copy in the shape of the old-time flamboyant editorial, which spouted its train of thought in this vituperative strain:

"We note by the columns of a scurrilous contemporary that certain views of ours touching the welfare of this flourishing commonwealth are being impugned in certain quarters. We wish to state that we have never been sought by the sheriff in connection with a dastardly crime—to wit: horse-stealing. We never left a town ahead of a mob with a rope. We never were convicted of beating our mother, nor of deserting a wife and seven children. We name no names, but we want to ask if a certain editorial renegade, temporarily sojourning here, can say the same. Next week, full particulars—IF NECESSARY!"

RECOGNIZING THE TOURISTS

TUE Brainerd Country club is to be commended for inaugurating its tourist tournament Sunday, July 19. Every effort has been made to attract these people to the tournament and to assure them that Brainerd hospitality as exemplified by the local Country club is something to be appreciated.

An attractive list of prizes has been accumulated, well worthy the consideration of every tourist golfer.

THE average editor can meet an irate subscriber and get away with it; he can even meet the man who doesn't like his editorials and enjoy the meeting, but the hardest thing for him to meet is the Saturday night payroll, says Heinie Mitchell of the Bemidji Daily Pioneer.

THE Anoka Herald recently carried an editorial saying unkind things about the motor tourists. Exception has been taken by many newspapers. The Anoka Herald man must have had a grouch when he wrote it.

SERGEANT JOSEPH CIGICH of Kansas City, Kansas, is said to speak seven languages. His wife, however, probably does not give him the chance to use all of them.

WE had dinner with a farmer family in the country the other day and the housewife remarked that many a great chef would lose his job forever if he lost his can opener.

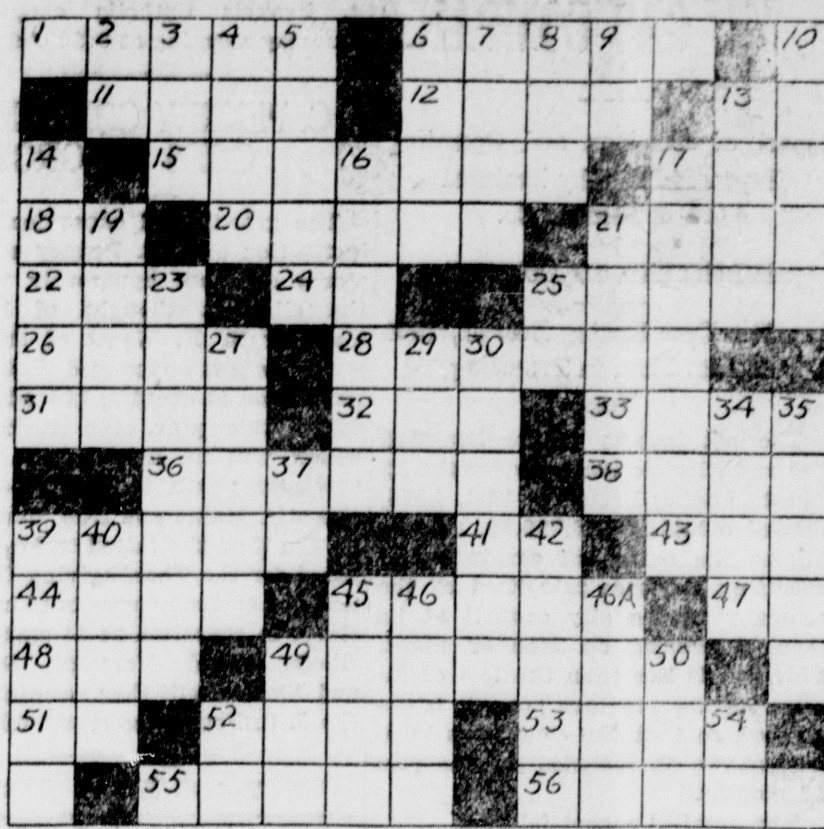

CHIEF BENDER, born in Brainerd, and once a teammate of Les Bush on the Athletics, is now coach on the Chicago White Sox team.

THE quiet manager in baseball is winning victories. This resembles the "quiet" better-half manager who also wins victories at home.

THE recent earthquake did a funny stunt out in Montana where it created a lake. A landslide dammed a mountain stream.

No doubt the Chicago Tribune, now housed in a 36-story building, may be properly accused of printing some "tall" stories.

"SOME WILD NOTIONS I HAVE KNOWN"

By the REV. ROY L. SMITH, D. D.
Pastor Simpson M. E. Church, Minneapolis

"SILENCE IS GOLDEN"

Some men boast of their ability to speak in four languages, others of their ability to keep silent in twenty.

But silence is not always a sign of strength. Sometimes it is a sign of cowardice.

When "right is on the scaffold and wrong is on the throne," to keep silent is to betray one's honor, to kill one's self-respect.

Patrick Henry, Savonarola, John Knox, Samuel Adams, Cardinal Mercier and thousands of humble and nameless have scorned a golden silence for dangerous but heroic speech and have died with their souls clean of self-approach.

Silence is sometimes ignorance.

Lincoln's Gettysburg address received no editorial mention in any of the leading periodicals of that day. It remained for the next generation to discover the immortal beauty of that greatest of American utterances.

Roman historians either completely ignore Jesus of Nazareth or dismiss him with a single line. Yet "He lifted the gates of empires off their hinges and turned the stream of civilization into new channels."

Silence is sometimes selfish.

A gentle word of sympathy for a friend in distress is the mark of sincere friendship. A strong word of courage for a tempted youth is the glorious privilege of the righteous man. A reverent word of faith in an hour of uncertainty and doubt may set a life going in the way of large usefulness. A letter of appreciation to an honest official may turn the tide of public affairs. An unselfish and heroic use of speech is a gift more precious than gold.

FAMOUS FORTS IN U. S. HISTORY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Where the Power of the Sioux Was Broken.

In 1874 there was established near the Red Cloud agency in the north-western corner of Nebraska a military post which is historically important because around it centered the events which broke forever the power of the Sioux and their allies, the Northern Cheyenne. Fort Robinson was its name and its presence in the midst of the Ogallala Sioux kept thousands of them from joining the hostiles at the opening of the Sioux war of 1876-77.

Near it in October, 1876, General Crook further clipped their wings by surrounding the camp of old Chief Red Cloud and disarming and dismounting his warriors. From it the next month Col. Ranald S. Mackenzie led the expedition which defeated Chief Dull Knife and his Cheyennes, destroyed their village on the Crazy Woman's fork of the Powder river and scored the first real success in the campaign. There, too, Crazy Horse, the young war chief of the Ogallalas, fell mortally wounded when he resisted an attempt to imprison him.

Perhaps the most dramatic incident connected with the history of Fort Robinson was the outbreak of the Cheyennes in 1879. Dull Knife's Cheyennes had been sent to Oklahoma but they hated their new home and jumped the reservation. After successfully eluding pursuit for several hundred miles, they were finally captured and taken to Fort Robinson. When told they must return to Oklahoma, they again attempted to break away. Many of them were shot down as they tried to escape from the fort, the remainder were recaptured and again they were returned to the hated Southland. So Fort Robinson marked the end of the Cheyennes as a warrior people, just as it did the Sioux.

The usefulness of Fort Robinson passed away with the end of the Indian wars. Today it is a place of ghosts—ghosts of the redmen and white who once helped make it famous. Near it are buried two renowned scouts—California Joe and Baptiste Garnier, the "Little Bat" of Sioux war days, both victims of an assassin. Somewhere near the fort, too, sleeps Crazy Horse in a secret burying place of which it has been said: "Just as the grave of General Custer on the barren hill above the Little Big Horn was the high-water mark of Indian supremacy in the trans-Missouri region, so the forgotten grave of Crazy Horse marks the ebb from which no tide has ever risen."

Entrances Into Town

Should Be Attractive

It is a fact that there is no lack of beauty along the railroad lines in England, France, Germany and other places. Liberal planting of grass and shrubs, either by the railroad or the various municipalities, has transformed these railroad lines into lanes of beauty.

The aim of American civic authorities should be to make the railroad highways of the country as attractive as any of those in the old countries. Particular attention will be given to the approaches to towns. The idea is spreading rapidly. The American Railways Development association has passed resolutions recently to further the aims of the real estate men by co-operating with them in this important work.

Committees have been organized in New Orleans, Milwaukee, Duluth, Atlanta; Erie and Lancaster, Pa.; South Bend, Dayton, Des Moines; Trenton, N. J.; Providence, R. I.; Lockport, N. Y.; Dade City, Fla.; Warren, Ohio; Mishawaka, Ind.; Kankakee, Ill.; Madison, Wis.; Little Rock, Ark.; Arkansas City; Ogden, Utah; Casper, Wyo.; Albany, Ore., and Pasadena, Venice and Riverside, Cal.

They will urge upon the manufacturer located along the railroads the advantages to him, his business and the town of keeping his factory yard as clean and attractive as it is economically possible.

The plan calls for new station signs prominently placed. Besides the name of the town, it will give the total population, real estate and business wealth, and the town's chief industry.

Painters Have Much to Do With City's Safety

The house painter is as vital a member of a city's public safety forces as the fireman according to J. P. Rising, president of the Illinois Master House Painters' and Decorators' association.

"His position is unofficial," he said, "but he protects the citizens from destruction more devastating than fire and from losses far greater than they might suffer at the hands of the most unscrupulous burglar."

The painter, according to Mr. Rising, saves life and property by means of his commodity, paint. Rot and rust attack unprotected surfaces. Disease germs flourish in the decaying parts of wood and on all rough, damp surfaces. Rot and rust are more insidious than fire, but their action, an oxidation of wood and metal, is a "slow-motion picture," as Mr. Rising termed it, of the more spectacular flames.

"The difference is," he added, "that whereas fires are occasional occurrences, rot and rust are at work continually. A house must be always protected against them."

Home and City Synonymous

Home is more than the house, it is more than the grounds, it is deeper than any designation of physical boundary and more rich than anything made with hands. It is the dwelling place of the spirit—if the liberal thinkers will admit that each of us has such a thing—as well as of the body, which they seem to admit that we do possess. The house is the center of home, but it is no distortion of the truth to say that the city of one's abiding place is his home also. It is the wider home, but it is his. As a man labors to provide for his house, as a woman gives of the best of her strength and forethought to make goodly the house that is her own, so ought they both, proportionately, to do their best to make their larger home, which is their city, a prosperous place. —Connorsville (Ind.) News.

Garden Adornment

Garden architecture must echo and reflect and be consistent with the architecture of the house itself. Pergolas of classic design cannot unbend to a rambling, careless little bungalow, nor can a rustic pergola rise to the dignity of a Georgian mansion. Naturally, if there is architectural adornment in the garden, it should be interrelated with that of the house. The use of a pergola is to support vines and to provide a pleasant, shady walk. But there is no reason for its existence if there is no vine for it to support, no destination to lead to.—The Designer Magazine.

Within Reach of All

A little town can't attract much favorable attention with posters and painted signs, but it can be talked about throughout the country, if it has ten acres of flower gardens along its streets. And that's something that's within the reach of the little town.

Find Beauty at Home

It is characteristic of human nature that it is seldom impressed by the accustomed view. The average man or woman wishing to observe beauty thinks it necessary to seek it afar. That distance lends enchantment and the grass is always greener on the other side of the street are old expressions of that universal illusion. Yet many a man has journeyed around the world on this quest, only to find that, after all, the supreme beauty lies at home.

Found Life Happier With Gathering Years

Here's an editorial written by A. B. Farquhar, who died the other day in his eighty-sixth year. It's in the last chapter of his autobiography, and it sums up life as he saw it after he had passed the four-score mark.

And now, in conclusion, what does it all mean? What have these years taught me? Nothing of a startling nature—the incidents fade—but these principles remain:

1. That it is, as a rule, safe to trust human beings. Comparatively few are unfair, if you are fair yourself.

2. That troubles and apparent difficulties are but stepping-stones to progress—the most practical way of learning—and, as Greeley said, "The way to resume is to resume."

3. That there is nothing that will take the place of work, either to gain success or to gain happiness or to gain both—and I think it is possible to gain both if, in the striving and working for success, the dollar is not put above the man.

4. That one can and must keep faith with oneself.

5. That God is not mocked. You cannot break his laws without suffering.

6. That one's only dangerous enemy is oneself. In the ultimate no one can hurt you but yourself.

7. That friends are among the greatest assets—and the way to get friends is to be a friend.

8. That one should never seek anything for which one does not give value. This avoids the disposition to speculate—which is one of the greatest dangers that beset the business man.

Following these rules, the world grows in interest and life is happier with gathering years.—From The Nation's Business.

Delicate Instrument

There will shortly leave America an expedition that will travel half round the earth and will take daily measurements of the heat of the sun in the interest of long-range weather forecasting. It will occupy four years in this task. The instrument that will be used is a radiometer invented by the late Dr. E. F. Nichols.

This radiometer is so sensitive that the ray of a candle situated 7,000 feet away and focused upon it is sufficient to turn its vanes through several hundred scale divisions. Even the face of an observer, when placed in the position previously occupied by the candle, will produce a deflection of 25 scale divisions.

It has been suggested by a humorist that with this instrument one might almost note the approach of a friend, while still some miles distant, merely by the glow of his countenance.

It might even detect the sun in an English summer.—London Tit-Bits.

Everything Running

One of the funniest things that ever came up in Judge Summerfield's court was a suit for the annulment of a marriage, instituted by an irate father.

It seems that the young couple, though their intentions had been suspected and they had been closely watched, had managed to elude the vigilance of their elders in a manner worthy of record.

"Yes, sir," cried the father, in giving his testimony. "The young scoundrel bored a hole in the water pipe, and while I was holdin' my finger over it an' waitin' for the plumber, darned if he didn't grab my gal and light out for the preacher."—Los Angeles Times.

Gentle Hint

Booth Tarkington was talking about a prolific novelist.

"He turns out trilogies and psychoanalysis romances and new thought tales by the score," Mr. Tarkington said, "but the more he turns out the less he sells."

"I think I'll go to the South seas or somewhere," he said in a discouraged voice the other day to a critic. "Yes, I think I'll go off and rest up for a year."

"I suppose," said the critic politely—"I suppose your public is beginning to suffer from writer's cramp, eh?"

Poor Child

A woman, in Birmingham, of great social aspirations, but not lavish of her money in attaining her ends, was accustomed to buy flowers for her functions from an old dame with a stand on the corner.

On one occasion the social aspirant said: "I want a large quantity of flowers from you next week, for my daughter's coming-out."

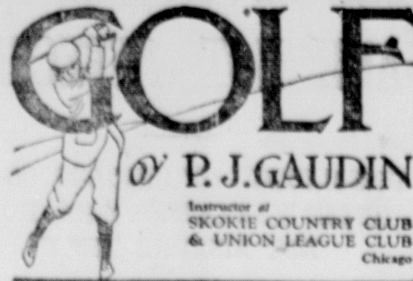

"All right," replied the old woman. "You're welcome to get very best I has for the pore child. What was she sent up for?"—Harper's Magazine.

Florine

Florine was a daughter of the duke of Burgundy—and was betrothed to Suenon, king of Denmark, and she accompanied this prince to the first crusade, in 1097. She was to have married him immediately after the conquest of the Holy city. However, in a terrific battle with the Saracens, they were both killed, as were all their companions, not one being left to bury the slain.—Chicago Journal.

The "Ozarks"

Ozark is a corruption of the French word aux arcs, and means "with bows," a term descriptive of the Indians who formerly inhabited the country.

23—Putting Stroke With Other Clubs.

Aside from the "hole-in-one" there is no more pleasurable sensation in golf than an approach shot close to or into the cup. It is the purpose of this article to tell how this can be accomplished far more often than it is.

We will take it for granted that you are fairly expert with the putter and that you understand fully that the putter face shall go back and come through the ball at right angles to produce the overspin putt. At a distance of perhaps 20 feet you find that on a slow green you lose accuracy through having to hit the ball too hard for your putting stroke. When this distance is reached, 20 or 30 feet, take your driving iron or cleek and putt with it. Forget entirely that the club is not a putter. Play exactly as if it were a putter. A little practice will make you as accurate with the driving iron as with the putter.

Suppose you are off the cut surface of the green, 30 to 50 feet from the pin. Here is a chance to use your head. If you can loft the ball to the cut surface, use a mid-iron by preference but be sure and use the regular putting stroke. Actually the shot is a pitch-and-run but it is nothing like the stroke necessary if you are more than 50 yards from the hole. It is a putt pure and simple, the only movement being with the wrists, the rest of the body being held without the slightest motion, stiff as a wedge if you wish so long as you let the wrists do the work freely. If the ball is lying close in grass an inch long, better try a figger on account of its greater loft. You will find that with a moderate amount of practice you can be as certain of holing out in one or two strokes under these conditions as with the putter from half the distance. Then try the mashie with the putting stroke. Without trying for distance, note carefully just how far the ball will loft and how much of a roll it will have. Probably you will find that on an average you can loft the ball 10 or 15 feet, followed by a roll of the same length, by putting with the mashie. Now try the same shot over a sand trap. You can be certain of better results than by using the regular mashie stroke. By putting with the clubs as noted, you can materially reduce your score.

GREEN PROMOTER GIVES NEW YORK BEST RING SHOW

New York, July 8.—Now that the noise and shouting attendant upon the Italian hospital fund bouts at the Polo grounds last Thursday night has died down to a mere steady buzz, it is possible to draw some conclusions from that affair coldly and calmly.

It appears that the biggest figure was one not seen in the ring. Dave Shade, Harry Greb, Mickey Walker, and Harry Wills all came out of the show with glory and gold enough to satisfy almost any one. But the real shining light was none other than Humbert J. Fugazy, the promoter, who sprang up almost over night to put over the best show in years, from both financial and artistic standpoints.

Fugazy, with no previous promoting experience, gave New York the greatest fistie thrills it has enjoyed in a long time and netted the charity for which he labored close to $100,000. That's not so bad for a greenhorn. If this man stays in the game—and the indications are that he will—boxing will be the gainer.

Duck Refuge

The Winneshiek bottom preserve is a 800-acre tract of land along the Mississippi river. Congress in 1924 passed a law preserving this land from drainage for a breeding and feeding place for ducks. There have been two or three instances where land in this vicinity has been drained for agricultural purposes and found absolutely useless. It was through the efforts of the Isaac Walton league that this land was preserved.

Claims American Fortune

Mrs. Mary O'Connor Tinsdall of 36 Doon street, London, who has been shelling peas in Covent Garden in London for 50 years, and claims the world's championship for that art, has put in claim for the fortune of John O'Connor, the reclusive shoemaker of Hastings, Neb., who died 12 years ago, leaving a fortune of $150,000. However, she is but one of 500 O'Connors from all over the world who have put in claims for the fortune. Mrs. Tinsdall thinks she is the late reclusive's sister.

A Cow and Her Horn

Paul, age four, was making his first visit in the country and was introduced to the cow. The animal's horns interested him most as his only experience with horns had been with those of tin, campaign variety.

Later, while at dinner, Paul heard the cow bawl and called out: "Oh, mamma, listen to that cow blowing her horn."

Dawgone It

Zac Sanderson, Universal's most persistent office seeker, has an Alredale and when Lee Jacobson ventured to burst into song one day, the dog joined in, lustily.

"Come on pup," pleaded Zac, "don't waste your time singing duets with that bird, he can make racket enough by himself."

Entrances Into Town

Should Be Attractive

It is a fact that there is no lack of beauty along the railroad lines in England, France, Germany and other places. Liberal planting of grass and shrubs, either by the railroad or the various municipalities, has transformed these railroad lines into lanes of beauty.

The aim of American civic authorities should be to make the railroad highways of the country as attractive as any of those in the old countries. Particular attention will be given to the approaches to towns. The idea is spreading rapidly. The American Railways Development association has passed resolutions recently to further the aims of the real estate men by co-operating with them in this important work.

Committees have been organized in New Orleans, Milwaukee, Duluth, Atlanta; Erie and Lancaster, Pa.; South Bend, Dayton, Des Moines; Trenton, N. J.; Providence, R. I.; Lockport, N. Y.; Dade City, Fla.; Warren, Ohio; Mishawaka, Ind.; Kankakee, Ill.; Madison, Wis.; Little Rock, Ark.; Arkansas City, Ogden, Utah; Casper, Wyo.; Albany, Ore.; Pasadena, Venice and Riverside, Cal.

They will urge upon the manufacturer located along the railroads the advantages to him, his business and the town of keeping his factory yard as clean and attractive as it is economically possible.

The plan calls for new station signs prominently placed. Besides the name of the town, it will give the total population, real estate and business wealth, and the town's chief industry.

Painters Have Much to Do With City's Safety

The house painter is as vital a member of a city's public safety forces as the fireman according to J. P. Rising, president of the Illinois Master House Painters' and Decorators' association.

"This position is unofficial," he said, "but he protects the citizens from destruction more devastating than fire and from losses far greater than they might suffer at the hands of the most unscrupulous burglar."

The painter, according to Mr. Rising, saves life and property by means of his commodity, paint. Rot and rust attack unprotected surfaces. Disease germs flourish in the decaying parts of wood and on all rough, damp surfaces. Rot and rust are more insidious than fire, but their action, an oxidation of wood and metal, is a "slow-motion picture," as Mr. Rising termed it, of the more spectacular flames.

"The difference is," he added, "that whereas fires are occasional occurrences, rot and rust are at work continually. A house must be always protected against them."

Home and City Synonymous

Home is more than the house, it is more than the grounds, it is deeper than any designation of physical boundary and more rich than anything made with hands. It is the dwelling place of the spirit—if the liberal thinkers will admit that each of us has such a thing—as well as of the body, which they seem to admit that we do possess. The house is the center of home, but it is no distortion of the truth to say that the city of one's abiding place is his home also. It is the wider home, but it is his. As a man labors to provide for his house, as a woman gives of the best of her strength and forethought to make goodly the house that is her own, so ought they both, proportionately, to do their best to make their larger home, which is their city, a prosperous place. —Cannerville (Ind.) News.

Garden Adornment

Garden architecture must echo and reflect and be consistent with the architecture of the house itself. Pergolas of classic design cannot unbend to a rambling, careless little bungalow, nor can a rustic pergola rise to the dignity of a Georgian mansion. Naturally, if there is architectural adornment in the garden, it should be interrelated with that of the house. The use of a pergola is to support vines and to provide a pleasant, shady walk. But there is no reason for its existence if there is no vine for it to support, no destination to lead to. —The Designer Magazine.

Within Reach of All

A little town can't attract much favorable attention with posters and painted signs, but it can be talked about throughout the country, if it has ten acres of flower gardens along its streets. And that's something that's within the reach of the little town.

Find Beauty at Home

It is characteristic of human nature that it is seldom impressed by the accustomed view. The average man or woman wishing to observe beauty thinks it necessary to seek it afar. That distance lends enchantment and the grass is always greener on the other side of the street are old expressions of that universal illusion. Yet many a man has journeyed around the world on this quest, only to find that, after all, the supreme beauty lies at home.

Found Life Happier With Gathering Years

Here's an editorial written by A. B. Farquhar, who died the other day in his eighty-sixth year. It's in the last chapter of his autobiography, and it sums up life as he saw it after he had passed the four-score mark.

And now, in conclusion, what does it all mean? What have these years put me? Nothing of a startling nature—the incidents fade—but these principles remain:

1. That it is, as a rule, safe to trust human beings. Comparatively few are unfair, if you are fair yourself.

2. That troubles and apparent difficulties are but stepping-stones to progress—the most practical way of learning—and, as Greeley said, "The way to resume is to resume."

3. That there is nothing that will take the place of work, either to gain success or to gain happiness or to gain both—and I think it is possible to gain both if, in the striving and working for success, the dollar is not put above the man.

4. That one can and must keep faith with oneself.

5. That God is not mocked. You cannot break his laws without suffering.

6. That one's only dangerous enemy is oneself. In the ultimate no one can hurt you but yourself.

7. That friends are among the greatest assets—and the way to get friends is to be a friend.

8. That one should never seek anything for interest and life is happier with gathering years.—From The Nation's Business.

Delicate Instrument

There will shortly leave America an expedition that will travel half round the earth and will take daily measurements of the heat of the sun in the interest of long-range weather forecasting. It will occupy four years in this task. The instrument that will be used is a radiometer invented by the late Dr. E. F. Nichols.

This radiometer is so sensitive that the ray of a candle situated 7,000 feet away and focused upon it is sufficient to turn its vanes through several hundred scale divisions. Even the face of an observer, when placed in the position previously occupied by the candle, will produce a deflection of 25 scale divisions.

It has been suggested by a humorist that with this instrument one might almost note the approach of a friend, while still some miles distant, merely by the glow of his countenance.

It might even detect the sun in an English summer.—London Tit-Bits.

Everything Running

One of the funniest things that ever came up in Judge Summerfield's court was a suit for the annulment of a marriage, instituted by an irate father.

It seems that the young couple, though their intentions had been suspected and they had been closely watched, had managed to elude the vigilance of their elders in a manner worthy of record.

"Yes, sir," cried the father, in giving his testimony. "The young scoundrel bored a hole in the water pipe, and while I was holdin' my finger over it an' waitin' for the plumber, darned if he didn't grab my gal and light out for the preacher."—Los Angeles Times.

Gentle Hint

Booth Tarkington was talking about a prolific novelist.

"He turns out trilogies and psycho-analysis romances and new thought tales by the score," Mr. Tarkington said, "but the more he turns out the less he sells."

"I think I'll go to the South seas or somewhere," he said in a discouraged voice the other day to a critic. "Yes, I think I'll go off and rest up for a year."

"I suppose," said the critic politely—"I suppose your public is beginning to suffer from writer's cramp, eh?"

Poor Child

A woman, in Birmingham, of great social aspirations, but not lavish of her money in attaining her ends, was accustomed to buy flowers for her functions from an old dame with a stand on the corner.

On one occasion the social aspirant said: "I want a large quantity of flowers from you next week, for my daughter's coming-out."

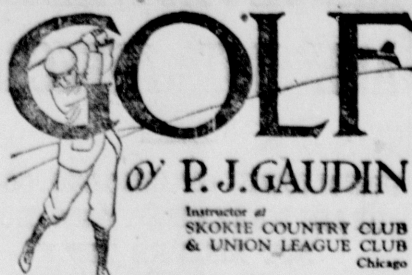

"All right," replied the old woman. "You is gwine to git de very best I has for the pore child. What was she sent up for?"—Harper's Magazine.

Florine

Florine was a daughter of the duke of Burgundy and was betrothed to Suenon, king of Denmark, and she accompanied this prince to the first crusade, in 1097. She was to have married him immediately after the conquest of the Holy city. However, in a terrific battle with the Saracens, they were both killed, as were all their companions, not one being left to bury the slain.—Chicago Journal.

The "Ozarks"

Ozark is a corruption of the French word aux arcs, and means "with bows," a term descriptive of the Indians who formerly inhabited the country.

23—Putting Stroke With Other Clubs.

Aside from the "hole-in-one" there is no more pleasurable sensation in golf than an approach shot close to or into the cup. It is the purpose of this article to tell how this can be accomplished far more often than it is.

We will take it for granted that you are fairly expert with the putter and that you understand fully that the putter face shall go back and come through the ball at right angles to produce the overspin putt. At a distance of perhaps 20 feet you find that on a slow green you lose accuracy through having to hit the ball too hard for your putting stroke. When this distance is reached, 20 or 50 feet, take your driving iron or club and putt with it. Forget entirely that the club is not a putter. Play exactly as if it were a putter. A little practice will make you as accurate with the driving iron as with the putter.

Suppose you are off the cut surface of the green, 30 to 50 feet from the pin. Here is a chance to use your head. If you can loft the ball to the cut surface, use a mid-iron by preference but be sure and use the regular putting stroke. Actually the shot is a pitch-and-run but it is nothing like the stroke necessary if you are more than 50 yards from the hole. It is a putt pure and simple, the only movement being with the wrists, the rest of the body being held without the slightest motion, stiff as a wedge if you wish so long as you let the wrists do the work freely. If the ball is lying close in grass an inch long, better try a figger on account of its greater loft. You will find that with a moderate amount of practice you can be as certain of holing out in one or two strokes under these conditions as with the putter from half the distance. Then try the mashie with the putting stroke. Without trying for distance, note carefully just how far the ball will loft and how much of a roll it will have. Probably you will find that on an average you can loft the ball 10 or 15 feet, followed by a roll of the same length, by putting with the mashie. Now try the same shot over a sand trap. You can be certain of better results than by using the regular mashie stroke. By putting with the clubs as noted, you can materially reduce your score.

GREEN PROMOTER GIVES NEW YORK BEST RING SHOW

New York, July 8.—Now that the noise and shouting attendant upon the Italian hospital fund bouts at the Polo grounds last Thursday night has died down to a mere steady buzz, it is possible to draw some conclusions from that affair coldly and calmly.

It appears that the biggest figure was one not seen in the ring. Dave Shade, Harry Greb, Mickey Walker, and Harry Wills all came out of the show with glory and gold enough to satisfy almost any one. But the real shining light was none other than Humbert J. Fugazy, the promoter, who sprang up almost over night to put over the best show in years, from both financial and artistic standpoints.

Fugazy, with no previous promoting experience, gave New York the greatest fistic thrills it has enjoyed in a long time and netted the charity for which he labored close to $100,000. That's not so bad for a greenhorn. If this man stays in the game—and the indications are that he will—boxing will be the gainer.

Duck Refuge

The Winnebago bottom preserve is a 800-acre tract of land along the Mississippi river. Congress in 1924 passed a law preserving this land from drainage for a breeding and feeding place for ducks. There have been two or three instances where land in this vicinity has been drained for agricultural purposes and found absolutely useless. It was through the efforts of the Izaak Walton league that this land was preserved.

Claims American Fortune

Mrs. Mary O'Connor Tinsall of 36 Doon street, London, who has been shelling peas in Covent Garden in London for 50 years, and claims the world's championship for that art, has put in claim for the fortune of John O'Connor, the reclusive shoemaker of Hastings, Neb., who died 12 years ago, leaving a fortune of $150,000, which has grown to $250,000 since. However, she is but one of 500 O'Connors from all over the world who have put in claims for the fortune. Mrs. Tinsall thinks she is the late reclusive's sister.

A Cow and Her Horn

Paul, age four, was making his first visit in the country and was introduced to the cow. The animal's horns interested him most as his only experience with horns had been with those of tin, campaign variety.

Later, while at dinner, Paul heard the cow bawl and called out: "Oh, mamma, listen to that cow blowing her horn."

Dawgone It

"Come on pup," pleaded Zac, "don't waste your time singing duets with that bird, he can make racket enough by himself."

SPEAKS OF THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

Miss Marion Opsahl, Who Spent Year

Record of Experiences

TAUGHT SCHOOL THERE

Former Brainerd Rotary Pianist
Likes Our Lakes Better Than Hawaiian Surf

Miss Marion Opsahl, who spent a year in the Hawaiian Islands, was the main speaker at the Rotary club luncheon yesterday. She sketched her trip from Brainerd to Seattle, to Portland, to Los Angeles, and then set sail on the liner "City of Los Angeles," and after a stormy trip in which she was seasick every day, she landed at Honolulu and with her companion, Miss Thelma Reis, was sent to her teaching assignment at Waianae, Oahu.

She taught a receiving grade and had 56 pupils, with not a white child among them. Here are some of the names of the hopefuls, Chiyoko Kaneshiro, Yoshiyuki Kagakawa, Eiki Kohoshigawa, Puniwai Kial-welako, etc. You can imagine the difficulty of pronouncing such a roll call.

The two girls were on a sugar plantation 32 miles north of Honolulu. This plantation produced 5,000 tons last year. All plantation employees have electric lights in their homes and the natives, always superstitious and afraid of the dark, burn their lights continuously. The school ma'ams, being no plantation employees, had no lights in their cottages.

Miss Opsahl recited many amusing experiences while teaching. For instance she taught her barefooted classes a special dance for a Christmas entertainment and when the eventful day arrived, every pupil appeared in huge brogans of parents or other relatives and, of course, with such impediments, the dance came to an abrupt halt until the whole assemblage cast aside the offending footwear.

The temperature is about like our warmest summer and does not vary much the year around. It takes the average teacher a year to get acquainted with conditions and after being a seasoned veteran in the islands, much that was irritating becomes accepted as a matter of course. For instance, ants parade in huge armies. Spiders as large as baseballs prowl around nights.

Every sect has a church and Miss Opsahl visited many of them and explained their religious rites.

Pleasant memories were linked about Miss Opsahl's three visits at the Honolulu Rotary club. They sang fairly well, but the Honolulu Rotarians cannot hope to equal

Pauline Frederick and Lew Cody in "THREE WOMEN"
AN ERNST LUBITSCH PRODUCTION

Pauline Was First Star to Go to Europe

Pauline Frederick is celebrating her tenth anniversary in motion pictures. Just ten years ago, Famous Players engaged her for the role of Donna Roma in the screen version of Hall Caine's drama, "The Eternal City." This is of special interest, inasmuch as "The Eternal City" has also recently been made by another producing company. Miss Frederick was the first star to go to Europe on location, the company journeying to Rome on exterior shots. She has one of the leading roles in the new Lubitsch production showing at the New Park tonight and Thursday. This is "Three Women," Lubitsch's second offering through Warner Bros. to the film public. The first, "The Marriage Circle," electrified the movie world with its revelations of how entertaining a picture could be.

"Three Women" is the story of the fight of a mother and daughter for the hand of a man. The mother sacrifices herself by retiring, the man marries the daughter for her money, then neglects her to run after a little chit of a frivolous butterfly.

Brainerd Rotarians in tone volume and artistry. She accompanied the Hawaiian club when leper children at Kalih hospital, the receiving station for lepers, were presented with apples, nuts and candy. Besides the receiving station there are two islands devoted to the curable and the incurable cases.

Hawaii has its moonlight, its superb sunsets, its surf, its dancing girls, its wonderful bathing beach at Waikiki, but in spite of all these attractions Miss Opsahl said the land of 10,000 lakes was best because it was home.

MINNESOTA FARMERS ARE NOT AFFECTED

DISSOLUTION OF CHICAGO CO-OP. GRAIN MARKETING ASSO. DOES NOT DISTURB THEM

St. Paul, July 8.—Minnesota farmers have marketed their grain through their own organizations and will not be affected by dissolution of the Chicago Co-operative Grain Marketing Association, according to O. P. B. Jacobson, chairman of the state railroad and warehouse commission. Virtually none of the stock issue authorized for Minnesota last fall was sold here, according to Andrew Bossagrarian at the University farm.

Declared Work of "Hidden Enemies"

St. Paul, July 8.—Rumors in Chicago that the Grain Marketing Company, a huge co-operative organization, will dissolve, are the work of "hidden enemies," J. F. Reed declared today. He said there was no possibility that the company would dissolve.

Reed is a member of the board of directors and is president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation. "Rumors are based upon the fact that the Grain Marketing Company must meet obligations of $4,000,000 July 28th," said Reed. "Whether these obligations are met or not, the company will go on just as at present."

Dissolution Presaged

Chicago, July 8.—A major step presaging dissolution of the Grain Marketing Corporation, a $26,000,000 concern, will be taken at the regular meeting of the Chicago board of trade directors this afternoon, the United Press learned today.

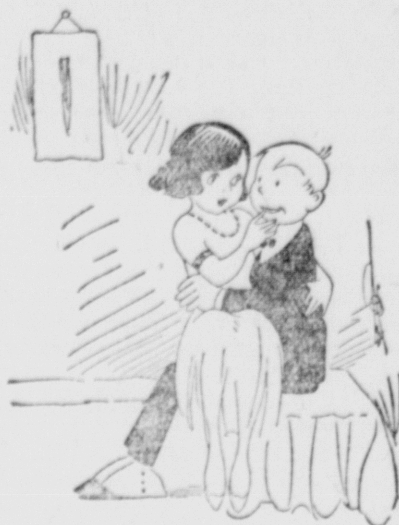

The directors, according to Gray Silver, president of the company, are expected to act favorably on a petition for membership on the open market filed by the Armour Grain Company and Rosenbaum Grain Company, integral parts of the marketing company. According to Silver, this movement does not necessarily mean dissolution. It is a step dictated by business prudence, he said.

Leading financiers, however, regarded it as the necessary movement toward the breaking up of the huge concern brought about by the consolidation of four large grain companies about a year ago. Optional grain contracts promulgated at the time of the consolidation expired on July 28th. On this date, it is believed the company will finally announce dissolution, placing responsibility on the failure of farmers to support the corporation.

Become Members Clearing House

Chicago, July 8.—Armour Grain Company and Rosenbaum Grain Company have become members of the clearing house today. Notices have been sent all customers of the Grain Marketing corporation today.

Pauline Frederick is celebrating her tenth anniversary in motion pictures. Just ten years ago, Famous Players engaged her for the role of Donna Roma in the screen version of Hall Caine's drama, "The Eternal City." This is of special interest, inasmuch as "The Eternal City" has also recently been made by another producing company. Miss Frederick was the first star to go to Europe on location, the company journeying to Rome on exterior shots. She has one of the leading roles in the new Lubitsch production showing at the New Park tonight and Thursday. This is "Three Women," Lubitsch's second offering through Warner Bros. to the film public. The first, "The Marriage Circle," electrified the movie world with its revelations of how entertaining a picture could be.

"Three Women" is the story of the fight of a mother and daughter for the hand of a man. The mother sacrifices herself by retiring, the man marries the daughter for her money, then neglects her to run after a little chit of a frivolous butterfly.

Brainerd Rotarians in tone volume and artistry. She accompanied the Hawaiian club when leper children at Kalih hospital, the receiving station for lepers, were presented with apples, nuts and candy. Besides the receiving station there are two islands devoted to the curable and the incurable cases.

Hawaii has its moonlight, its superb sunsets, its surf, its dancing girls, its wonderful bathing beach at Waikiki, but in spite of all these attractions Miss Opsahl said the land of 10,000 lakes was best because it was home.

MINNESOTA FARMERS ARE NOT AFFECTED

DISSOLUTION OF CHICAGO CO-OP. GRAIN MARKETING ASSO. DOES NOT DISTURB THEM

St. Paul, July 8.—Minnesota farmers have marketed their grain through their own organizations and will not be affected by dissolution of the Chicago Co-operative Grain Marketing Association, according to O. P. B. Jacobson, chairman of the state railroad and warehouse commission. Virtually none of the stock issue authorized for Minnesota last fall was sold here, according to Andrew Bossagrarian at the University farm.

Declared Work of "Hidden Enemies"

St. Paul, July 8.—Rumors in Chicago that the Grain Marketing Company, a huge co-operative organization, will dissolve, are the work of "hidden enemies," J. F. Reed declared today. He said there was no possibility that the company would dissolve.

Reed is a member of the board of directors and is president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation. "Rumors are based upon the fact that the Grain Marketing Company must meet obligations of $4,000,000 July 28th," said Reed. "Whether these obligations are met or not, the company will go on just as at present."

Dissolution Presaged

Chicago, July 8.—A major step presaging dissolution of the Grain Marketing Corporation, a $25,000,000 concern, will be taken at the regular meeting of the Chicago board of trade directors this afternoon, the United Press learned today.

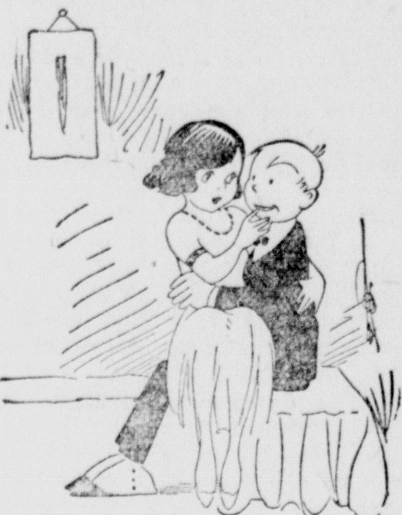

The directors, according to Gray Silver, president of the company, are expected to act favorably on a petition for membership on the open market filed by the Armour Grain Company and Rosenbaum Grain Company, integral parts of the marketing company. According to Silver, this movement does not necessarily mean dissolution. It is a step dictated by business prudence, he said.

Leading financiers, however, regarded it as the necessary movement toward the breaking up of the huge concern brought about by the consolidation of four large grain companies about a year ago. Optional grain contracts promulgated at the time of the consolidation expired on July 28th. On this date, it is believed the company will finally announce dissolution, placing responsibility on the failure of farmers to support the corporation.

Become Members Clearing House

Chicago, July 8.—Armour Grain Company and Rosenbaum Grain Company have become members of the clearing house today. Notices have been sent all customers of the Grain Marketing corporation today.

Shaft Would Have Value

It is strange that an expedition into the earth's interior has never been seriously attempted. If we could sink a shaft only twelve miles into the ground we might strike all the coal and oil that would be needed in millions of years. In all likelihood we should find radium, gold, silver, diamonds, and other gems of untold wealth, as well as wonderful new metals and fresh sources of energy.—Exchange.

Indians' Peace Pipe

The peace pipe of the North American Indians was a tobacco pipe with a stem of reed or painted wood about two feet and a half long, decorated with feathers, with a large bowl, usually of red soapstone. After a treaty was signed, the Indians filled the calumet, or peace pipe, with the best tobacco, and presented it to the representatives of the party with whom they entered into alliance, the Indians themselves smoking out of it afterward.—Exchange.

THE PERFECT MOTOR OIL

In Five Gallon Cans In the New Tilting Crate

This convenient, economical way of using Polarine—The Perfect Motor Oil—is taking the country by storm. Motorists have received it with eager enthusiasm.

The convenience is apparent; the economy feature manifests itself in a very short time. The tilting crate is the finishing touch to a complete service.

There is a grade of Polarine made for your individual make of car. Use that grade and you will get all the power your motor develops, for the Polarine film prevents its escape between the piston and cylinder wall. The Polarine film thoroughly lubricates and protects the remotest frictional surface of your engine.

By conserving all the power your engine develops, Polarine increases the mileage you get per gallon of gasoline used.

Drain your crankcase every 500 miles, thoroughly cleanse your motor with Polarine Flushing Oil, and refill with the correct grade of Polarine for your particular car. Consult chart for correct grade.

The Telephone Saved This Farmer's Corn Crop

Fire recently broke out in a mid-western farmer's barn near which were the cribs that contained most of his corn crop.

Rushing to the telephone, he summoned neighbors to his assistance. Their prompt arrival resulted in the fire being extinguished before much damage was done.

For ordinary daily needs, as well as in an emergency, the farm telephone is worth far more than its cost.

WHAT CARROLL LEARNED IN MAJORS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, July 8.—Many causes are advanced as reasons for the difficulty college pitchers have in making the grade in fast professional company. They are all theories, however.

One of the best opinions ever advanced was given recently by Owen Carroll, the former Holy Cross College star. In four years of college baseball, Carroll won forty and lost only two games and he was regarded as the best pitcher developed on a college diamond since Mathewson. After finishing his college course Carroll reported to the Detroit Tigers and was knocked out of the box in his first game against the Boston Red Sox. After the game Carroll said:

"The first thing I discovered was that I was facing eight good batters instead of three that are found usually on a good college team. I found that I was continually 'behind' the batter. By that I mean that I was always in the hole. On the college diamond I was always 'in front' of the batter and could waste a few balls to work on him. Major league batters can't be worked on that way. The first thing I discovered was that they would not hit at a bad ball. They wait out the pitcher and I found myself always in the hole where I would have to lay the ball right over the plate and take a chance.

"In college when a batter has two strikes on him he will swing invariably at anything, but it doesn't make any difference to a major league batter what you have on him. You can't pull him on a bad ball."

Although he did not make an auspicious start and in spite of the opinion of some smart baseball men that Ty Cobb is not the patient type of a manager to allow a young player a slow start, it is generally believed that Carroll will make good with the Tigers.

As far as Cobb's methods of handling the youngster is concerned it seems that the fiery Detroit manager did just what he was not expected to do. It is said that Cobb told Carroll in the dressing room that all he was expected to do was to win one of his first six games. When Carroll went to the mound it was observed that all of the Detroit pitchers were on the bench and the bull-pen was deserted. When the best of pitchers go to the mound it is the custom to send a catcher and one or two relief pitchers to the bull-pen to be ready for a call. Even when Cobb saw that Carroll could not go the limit, he did not send a relief pitcher to warm up until the very last minute.

DUEL FROM A. O. U. W.

FORMER ADVANCES TO TIE FOR FIRST PLACE IN LEAGUE COLUMN

PITCHERS ON BOTH SIDES CHARY IN ISSUING ANY PASSES

The B. A. C. won a pitchers' duel from the A. O. U. W. last night, 5-2, and advanced to a tie for first place in league standings. Jones for the B. A. C. allowed only four hits, and struck out 7, while Stevens allowed five hits and whiffed five. Neither pitcher issued a base on balls, the first time this year in league play that this has occurred.

Neither side scored until the third inning. In that frame, the B. A. C. were last at bat, with L. Thompson leading off with a single. Jones was safe on Anderson's misplay. Brick struck out, but was safe when Olson dropped the third strike, billing the bases. Roderick scored two with his single, and Brick erred on the throw-in to catch Olson. The B. A. C. added a counter in their half when Brick singled, stole second and scored on McAlpine's error of Roderick's fly.

Fans are well pleased with the games, all teams doing fine work and putting up a remarkable exhibition of baseball.

BRAINERD COUNTRY CLUB STAGES SAME ON SUNDAY, JULY 19

PURPOSE OF CLUB TO ENTERTAIN ALL VISITORS ROYALLY

LARGE NUMBER OF FINE PRIZES OFFERED IN VARIOUS EVENTS

The Brainerd Country club will stage a tourist tournament at its golf links on Sunday afternoon, July 19, beginning at 1:30 o'clock.

It is the purpose of the club to have every tourist in this section present for the tournament, and to entertain the visitors royally, so that the Brainerd Country club will be well known wherever tourists gather.

A large number of prizes are to be offered in this tournament, among them being golf clubs, golf balls, thermos bottles and other articles of special value to the tourist. These prizes have been contributed by the business men of the city.

It is planned to have two tourists and two Brainerd players matched in each foursome in this tournament, and local players as well as tourists are asked to get detailed information concerning the event from Edward J. Egan, chairman of the tournament committee.

This is to be a handicap tournament, and it is very important that the committee in charge know the average scores of the tourists entering. Each tourist is requested to send his name and his three best average scores to the chairman, Mr. Egan, and if the contestants have any scores made on the Brainerd course, they are requested also.

There will be no admission charge for this tournament, as everything, so far as the tourist is concerned, is free, and every tourist will receive a very cordial welcome.

Grounds keeper, John Cox, has had the grounds in fine shape all season, but he promises to have them in excellent condition for the afternoon of this tournament.

Further details of the event will be given in a later issue of the Dispatch.

At a special meeting of the tournament committee held Tuesday evening, it was decided to serve refreshments to the tourist visitors participating in the tournament. Through the courtesy of local business men who have kindly consented to donate the eatables, an excellent luncheon is to be provided.

SPEED DEMONS

AT AUTO RACES

Laurel, Md., July 8.—The newest automobile race track, flanked by the largest single grandstand in the world, will be opened here Saturday, with a 250-mile dedication race, participated in by a score of the leading speed demons of the country.

Twenty-five thousand people are expected to attend the race on the fast, high-banked, one and one-eighth mile wooden track just completed here.

The speedway, located halfway between Washington and Baltimore, represents an investment of about $500,000. It is located on an 80-acre tract of land, and parking space has been provided for 10,000 automobiles.

Winners of the races this year at Indianapolis, Culver City, Fresno and Altoona will be seen in the race including Peter de Paolo, Tommy Milton, Bennie Hill, Harry Hartz, Fred Comer, Earl Cooper and others.

The grandstand, built to accommodate 25,000 persons, is 800 feet long and rises to a height of 75 feet. It affords an unobstructed sight of all parts of the track from practically every seat. More than 4,000,000 feet of lumber were used in building it.

The track is built of long-leaf pine, two by four-inch planks laid on edge. It is heavily pitched throughout, reaching an angle of 48 degrees on the banks. This extreme rise measures from 41 to 40 feet—three feet higher than any board track built heretofore.

Racing men believe the banking will permit the fastest time ever made on wheels to be attained here. The races will be under the standard American Automobile Association regulations.

NEW FOOTBALL COACH AT U. OF M.

DR. CLARENCE W. SPEARS

MINNESOTA HIRES FAMOUS GRID COACH

DR. CLARENCE W. SPEARS OF WEST VIRGINIA ACCEPTS POST AT THE "U."

Dr. Clarence W. Spears, chosen as head football coach at the University of Minnesota to succeed William H. Spaulding, has been coach at the University of West Virginia for four years past, and before that was coach at Dartmouth College for four years. Walter Camp, shortly before his death, rated Spears as one of the eight best football coaches in the United States, which ought to put him automatically into the first division of the Big Ten if the coaches of any other institutions are to be rated favorably.

Dr. Spears Dartmouth teams won eighteen games, lost six, and tied one. At West Virginia his teams won thirty, lost six, and tied two, scoring 997 points against 199 for their opponents.

Minnesota's new coach is a graduate of Dartmouth, Class of 1916. He was chosen as an All-American guard by Camp in 1915. His football career began at Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., from which he transferred to Dartmouth, where he could play but two years because of his year at Knox. During his senior he became freshman coach and the next year, 1917, when Frank Cavanaugh resigned, he became head coach.

President L. D. Coffman, E. B. Pierce, chairman of the athletic committee, Fred W. Luehring, director of athletics, and Arnold Oss, alumni representative, have all expressed strong confidence in Spears' ability and in the likelihood of his building a successful Gopher team.

He will take charge at the opening of the season.

Seven of Minnesota's eight games this fall will be played at home, which will give Minnesota and Twin City enthusiasts ample time to see what kind of work the new gridiron leader can do. Major Ray Hill, famous as a backfield coach, has been engaged by Minnesota as an assistant who will give his time chiefly to the backs.

WHAT CARROLL LEARNED IN MAJORS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, July 8.—Many causes are advanced as reasons for the difficulty college pitchers have in making the grade in fast professional company. They are all theories, however.

One of the best opinions ever advanced was given recently by Owen Carroll, the former Holy Cross College star. In four years of college baseball, Carroll won forty and lost only two games and he was regarded as the best pitcher developed on a college diamond since Mathewson. After finishing his college course Carroll reported to the Detroit Tigers and was knocked out of the box in his first game against the Boston Red Sox. After the game Carroll said:

"The first thing I discovered was that I was facing eight good batters instead of three that are found usually on a good college team. I found that I was continually 'behind' the batter. By that I mean that I was always in the hole. On the college diamond I was always 'in front' of the batter and could waste a few balls to work on him. Major league batters can't be worked on that way. The first thing I discovered was that they would not hit at a bad ball. They wait out the pitcher and I found myself always in the hole where I would have to lay the ball right over the plate and take a chance.

"In college when a batter has two strikes on him he will swing invariably at anything, but it doesn't make any difference to a major league batter what you have on him. You can't pull him on a bad ball."

Although he did not make an auspicious start and in spite of the opinion of some smart baseball men that Ty Cobb is not the patient type of a manager to allow a young player a slow start, it is generally believed that Carroll will make good with the Tigers.

As far as Cobb's methods of handling the youngster is concerned it seems that the fiery Detroit manager did just what he was not expected to do.

It is said that Cobb told Carroll in the dressing room that all he was expected to do was to win one of his first six games. When Carroll went to the mound it was observed that all of the Detroit pitchers were on the bench and the bull-pen was deserted. When the best of pitchers go to the mound it is the custom to send a catcher and one or two relief pitchers to the bull-pen to be ready for a call. Even when Cobb saw that Carroll could not go the limit, he did not send a relief pitcher to warm up until the very last minute.

B.A. C. TEAM WINS PITCHER'S DUEL FROM A. O. U. W.

FORMER ADVANCES TO TIE FOR FIRST PLACE IN LEAGUE COLUMN

PITCHERS ON BOTH SIDES CHARY IN ISSUING ANY PASSES

The B. A. C. won a pitchers' duel from the A. O. U. W. last night, 5-2, and advanced to a tie for first place in league standings. Jones for the B. A. C. allowed only four hits, and struck out 7, while Stevens allowed five hits and whiffed five. Neither pitcher issued a base on balls, the first time this year in league play that this has occurred.

Neither side scored until the third inning. In that frame, the B. A. C. were last at bat, with L. Thompson leading off with a single. Jones was safe on Anderson's misplay. Brick struck out, but was safe when Olson dropped the third strike, filling the bases. Roderick scored two with his single, and Brick and Roderick were advanced to third and second on Uddenberg's infield out, both scoring on J. Thompson's single.

The Workmen made two in the fifth. Two were out when Fogelstrom got a life on Skiba's miff. Olson doubled, scoring Fogelstrom, and came home later after Stevens had singled, and Brick erred on the throw-in to catch Olson. The B. A. C. added a counter in their half when Brick singled, stole second and scored on McAlpine's error of Roderick's fly.

Fans are well pleased with the games, all teams doing fine work and putting up a remarkable exhibition of baseball.

BRAINERD COUNTRY CLUB STAGES SAME ON SUNDAY, JULY 19

PURPOSE OF CLUB TO ENTERTAIN ALL VISITORS ROYALLY

LARGE NUMBER OF FINE PRIZES OFFERED IN VARIOUS EVENTS

The Brainerd Country club will stage a tourist tournament at its golf links on Sunday afternoon, July 19, beginning at 1:30 o'clock.

It is the purpose of the club to have every tourist in this section present for the tournament, and to entertain the visitors royally, so that the Brainerd Country club will be well known wherever tourists gather.

A large number of prizes are to be offered in this tournament, among them being golf clubs, golf balls, thermos bottles and other articles of special value to the tourist. These prizes have been contributed by the business men of the city.

It is planned to have two tourists and two Brainerd players matched in each foursome in this tournament, and local players as well as tourists are asked to get detailed information concerning the event from Edward J. Egan, chairman of the tournament committee.

This is to be a handicap tournament, and it is very important that the committee in charge know the average scores of the tourists entering. Each tourist is requested to send his name and his three best average scores to the chairman, Mr. Egan, and if the contestants have any scores made on the Brainerd course, they are requested also.

There will be no admission charge for this tournament, as everything, so far as the tourist is concerned, is free, and every tourist will receive a very cordial welcome.

Grounds keeper, John Cox, has had the grounds in fine shape all season, but he promises to have them in excellent condition for the afternoon of this tournament.

Further details of the event will be given in a later issue of the Dispatch.

At a special meeting of the tournament committee held Tuesday evening, it was decided to serve refreshments to the tourist visitors participating in the tournament. Through the courtesy of local business men who have kindly consented to donate the eatables, an excellent luncheon is to be provided.

TAX REDUCTION

RAY P. CHASE, state auditor, delivered a comprehensive address on "Taxation" at the Chamber of Commerce last night. Mr. Chase has given the subject so much thought and research, has had experience of varied kinds in his own office, that he has been recognized as an authority on the subject.

He mentioned many ways in which taxes can be reduced. The attendance at the Chamber of Commerce rooms was not large, not large enough by any means in keeping with the importance of the subject.

Tax reduction is something that appeals to all taxpayers, but as a rule, they are perfectly willing to let some one else or some organization do the heavy work for them.

Tax reduction, odd as it may seem, offers more problems, disturbs more "vested" rights, upsets more established customs, creates more criticism, than does the imposition of additional taxes.

Mr. Chase is to be commended for his missionary work, for his desire to benefit the public and for his determination to have Minnesota adopt a sane system of taxation, bond issues, etc.

The federal government, through its chief, President Coolidge, is setting an admirable example in tax reduction. The economy issue of Coolidge is no mere figure of speech. The example of the nation, expressed in deeds and not mere words, is a shining beacon for every state in the union.

Mr. Chase counselled against a bond issue that imposed such a burden in the way of interest charges, that the interest payments frequently exceeded the principal before the debt was eventually paid. In the old days, the great consideration was simply, "Will somebody buy the bonds?" No thought was given to payment of principal, in fact some counties never even provided a sinking fund for such purpose. Cases are known of counties paying three times the value of a bridge in interest levies, while the original cost of the deteriorating structure is still unpaid.

Here is Mr. Chase's remedy: "Less borrowing, and the issuance of serial, rather than long-time bonds, when it is necessary that any bonds be issued, will reduce our interest charge, and, in addition thereto, cause the present generation to pay their own bills rather than hand them down to coming generations. Let every obligation be met during the life of the improvement, and the life of the generation which incurs the debt."

NATIONAL TAX REDUCTION

SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY MELLON is continuing his battle for tax reduction and is being backed by President Coolidge. The president considers it an integral part of his economy program, for whether your tax bill is large or small, tax reform should result in keeping more money in your pocket.

In a recent issue of Collier's magazine, one finds the enumeration of the points on which Secretary Mellon is making his memorable fight:

"There is to be no 'Mellon Plan' before the next Congress. Writing men are largely responsible for the fact that there was a 'Mellon Plan' a year ago.

"It (the 'Mellon Plan') might better have been called the 'Treasury Plan' because since 1919 one Democratic President and two Democratic Secretaries of the Treasury have offered to Congress exactly the same recommendations for tax reform that I suggested.

"Experience shows conclusively that if taxes are too high the source of revenue diminishes. No man will continue to sow where he cannot reap.

"This condition cannot be escaped—more scientific taxes on the larger incomes or more taxes on the lower incomes.

"The man with small income is more interested than are the wealthy themselves in seeing that the tax upon high incomes and large estates is economically sound.

"With tax-exempt securities being issued at the rate of more than a billion dollars a year, and with other means of escaping, the wealthy need no guardian."

And, by the way, every city, county, state government is assisting to pile up these tax exempt bond issues. Any time you crowd the rich too heavily with tax measures, they convert their industrial holdings into tax-exempt securities. Putting an end to tax-exempt securities, will bring such money now invested in such securities, from its non-productive hiding place and back into the channels of trade.

LINCOLN CLUBS

THERE is some unexplainable sentiment connected with even the mention of Lincoln that creates an interest and desire to help accomplish some great work in behalf of all our citizens.

Abraham Lincoln was the first great outstanding Republican, whose name, as a result of his deeds for the good of the human race, will never be forgotten and has passed into history, with his teachings as a basic foundation upon which has been built the Republican party of the United States.

The great emancipator will ever be remembered as advocating for our future only what was best for the greatest number of the people.

The Lincoln clubs of Minnesota now well on their way towards completing the foundation charter membership in the 87 counties of Minnesota, giving each county a local Lincoln club, to hold a Lincoln Birthday dinner February 12th each year and with a prominent speaker from state headquarters to attend, is a most commendable plan to create and hold interest among active Republicans during the "off" years, as well as election years.

With the women invited at all times, this completes the fairness of the foundation plans.

With a network of leaders throughout local county Lincoln clubs, in all counties, ever ready to cooperate with the state central committee, and county committees, and pledged to take no part in nominations only as individuals, this will indeed greatly reduce the work heretofore always necessary, of practically rebuilding the state and county organizations every two years.

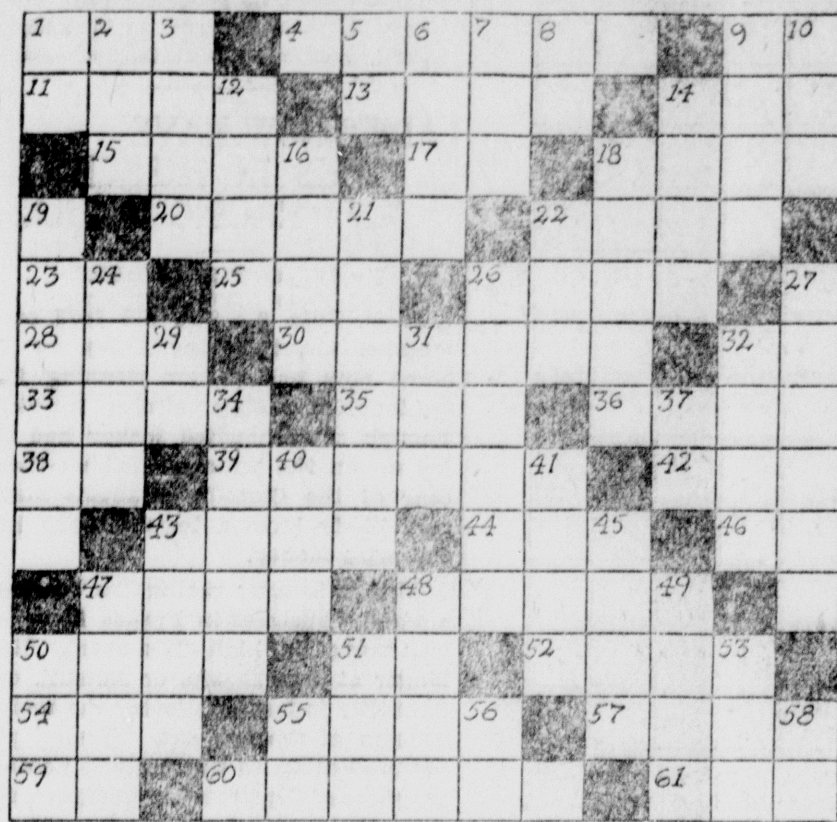

THE first of the month when the bills come in are Father's Days, says Billy Noonan of the Baudette Region.

WHILE we are sweating in summer temperature, our friend MacMillan is sailing his ship through miles of ice.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white squares up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

Artistic Designs in

Modern Shop Windows

A noteworthy change is slowly taking place in the appointment of our modern stores and shops, a writer in the San Francisco Chronicle comments. Today one witnesses everywhere the brightening up and rearrangement of our shops. Never before have such artistic exteriors been planned and such orderly interior arrangements been witnessed.

Up to this time our shops were a conglomeration of the material sold. There did not seem to be any definite plan, whereby a customer could see the goods to be sold to advantage. Instead of trying to show all the goods that might be purchased in a store, as was formerly the custom, we find today that the merchandise in general is subordinate, and forms the background of the entire store. However, the specialties which it is the purpose to emphasize, are shown to their best advantage, and naturally bring results.

The up-to-date owner pays great attention and gives serious study to the general architectural scheme of his store—the kind of floors, ceilings, walls and columns that are employed, and he insists that the entire arrangement be artistic and architecturally correct.

Even the field of window dressing is receiving architectural study. Years ago window dressing consisted of merely placing an artistic composition of material on display, but today a tour of the more up-to-date enterprising establishments will reveal the fact that the settings for our show windows consist of architectural backgrounds of meritorious designs.

Better Taste Needed in City Development

Turning American streets into hanging gardens by means of flower boxes on the windows and lamp posts is regarded as an enterprise of doubtful value by the civic development department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The motive is a very good one, but experience of cities where the experiment has been tried shows that after a time interest lags in this method of beautification and the hanging gardens take on the aspect of an arid waste.

As an alternative the civic development department suggested, in response to an inquiry, that to make the business district of American cities more attractive attention might better be directed to setting a better standard of taste in architecture and in regard to street fixtures and creating a public opinion which will demand only that which is good.

It also recommends the appointment of special committees to advise on facades of new buildings, pointing to the experience of the national capital and one or two other cities where the local chapters of the Institute of Architects effectively serves that purpose.

Profit in Beauty

Where villages are being made more beautiful, the impetus has come in nearly every case from local initiative. Villages that have well-planned streets, attractive recreation spots and pleasing approaches are nearly always indebted for these advantages to the energy and public spirit of some small group of citizens. Under such inspiration dump heaps have been turned into garden spots, and shabby streets and dilapidated stores have been torn down and replaced by smart substantial business buildings, and extensive programs of landscape gardening and tree planting have been undertaken. Villages that have embarked on this path are finding that beauty pays. It improves local business and attracts tourist business. It enhances real estate values and has a powerful influence in raising individual standards of efficiency and enterprise.

Children Need "Home"

No one is more susceptible to environment and surroundings than a child, and it is the children who suffer most when the family is transplanted too frequently. Living in rented quarters is quite conducive to frequent moving, with resultant struggles to find and make congenial friends, to adjust oneself to different schools and often to different methods of instruction, to try to find a place in the new neighborhood. If the family is settled in its own home, friendships, school and church relationships can be permanent and life-long, and each child feels that he has a place to fill in the community life. He will share his parents' feeling of responsibility as members of that community and he will do his best to make his home town the "best little place on earth."—New York Times.

Utilize Vacant Lots

You couldn't do a better thing for Talladega than to plan right now to plant flowers in what would otherwise be ugly spots in your city, namely, vacant lots here and there. If you don't care for posies, you might consider raising a garden. Anything is better than letting the vacant lots grow up into wilderness of weeds. The suggestion is one of whose adoption would mean much for a better looking city, and the appearances are important.—Talladega (Ala.) Daily Home.

A Case of Fifty-Fifty

By J. A. WALDRON

(Copyright.)

"ARE you—this is an intimate question, but I'd like to know—are you a bachelor?" Coquetry and impulse were mingled in her manner. "And you really would like to know?" His manner showed infatuation.

"Yes. Haven't we gone far enough for candor?"

"We have. Happily I am a bachelor."

And they resumed the little details that describe the finess of flirtation. On shipboard, out of Bordeaux, bound for New York, they had developed one of those sudden romances that figure in the daily press under the heading, "Married Two Days After Meeting," or perhaps one day, as such cases differ.

He was Ambrose Gillroye, of a lineage long and more or less distinguished in its remoter reaches. His line had gone to seed, as far as effort is concerned, two or three generations ahead of his advent. Averse to work, and despising trade, he had married money minus everything else that counts with a sentimentalist, although the money involved was won in trade. Before marriage and for some time after that event he had roamed abroad, seeking pleasure where it was to be had. The war had stopped these excursions for two years, but at last, weary of his plebeian matrimonial partner, he had gone abroad in hope of renewing his old joys.

Fortified with passports and all other necessary documents that are supposed to insure immunity he had reached Paris, but the atmosphere of the city was so different from that which formerly attracted him that he quickly decided to return. His natural gaiety had been eclipsed by his disappointment as to a pleasure sojourner, but it returned when on shipboard he discovered an object of his gallantry. He was a handsome fellow, and handsome fellows always fill the feminine eye. The countess of Bazentin was the name on the ship's list of the fair one whose first glance promised reciprocal attention.

The countess and Gillroye had needed no introduction. He had arranged her rug almost at the first moment they had met on deck. The third day out found them in a sentimental maze. They were so much together that her maid and his man enjoyed unwanted liberty.

"My entourage is quite unpretentious, as you see," she had said apologetically. "My estates in France were among those involved in the terrors of war. My chateau has been dismantled, and for the moment I am an economizing wanderer, though my future is financially insured."

"Do you remain long in America?"

"For the winter only. I am going across your great continent to California, where I shall remain until spring."

"And then I shall see you in New York?"

"Why not?"

This colloquy took place soon after their first coming together. And her query as to whether he was married was the result of closer intimacy. On arrival in New York—he had not advised Mrs. Gillroye of his intended return, in line with his usual reticence toward her—Gillroye saw the countess well bestowed in a Central park hotel. He would have busied himself with arranging details for her journey westward, but she naively denied him that pleasure. She should leave in a day or two, she said, and would call him for a temporary adieu.

His mind was made up. He would seek a divorce in the state whose law was most quickly accommodating. Then he would visit her in California and propose marriage. She had not told him her place of sojourn on the coast, and this he would learn before she left New York.

The next morning he visited her hotel. She had gone, but had left for him a letter which increased the flame of his infatuation and strengthened his purpose.

When he returned Mrs. Gillroye upbraided him for not advising her of his coming and tearfully complained that among other neglects he never wished to be seen with her in public. He jolled her out of this notion by promising to spend the next afternoon shopping with her.

They both emerged from a limousine on the avenue next day, and Gillroye dutifully led her dog about between her visits to various shops. She finally entered a milliner's, and he tarried for her. Mrs. Gillroye, proud of Gillroye, at once informed the chief saleswoman that her husband was waiting outside, making this an excuse for prompt attention.

The saleswoman, curious as to what sort of a husband this sort of woman could have, was at the show window as Gillroye stood outside. They caught each other's eye simultaneously.

She was the companion of his voyage.

Habits of Ducks

Young fish ducks are the last of our native ducks to learn how to fly. They are pretty well grown before they take wing, and seem content during their fledgling days to resort to "sidewheel" methods of locomotion when disturbed. They beat the water with their wings and paddle with their webbed feet and they are more difficult to capture than any wing-tipped mallard in open water.

AMUSEMENTS

"Steele of the Royal Mounted" James Oliver Curwood's thrilling story of the Canadian Northwest, is showing at the Lyceum tonight and Friday, starring Bert Lytell and Charlotte Merriam.

"Cheaper to Marry" Coming

"Cheaper to Marry," a film version of the play of that name by Samuel Shipman, will be at Lyceum Sunday and Monday. It is a Robert Z. Leonard production for Metro-Goldwyn. The cast includes Lewis S. Stone, Paulette Goddard, Conrad Nagel, Marguerite de la Motte, Louise Fazenda, Claude Gillingwater and Richard Wayne.

When Lew Cody Felt Too Heavy

Not often can a man be hit over the head with a bottle twelve times without his offering any resistance. Lew Cody, in spite of his athletic figure and seemingly determined face underwent this cruel treatment with not a word of remonstrance, even though he did feel the sting after a while.

Of course, there was a reason. Ernst Lubitsch, who was directing "Three Women," insisted that the scene be retaken over and over again and all objections were overruled. The next day Cody's luck changed. One scene with May McAvoy was to end in a long lingering kiss, but inasmuch as Mr. Lubitsch seemed perfectly satisfied after the second retake, Cody was cheated out of some fun.

"Three Women," a Warner Bros. Screen Classic, will be shown at the New Park last time tonight.

Betty, the Surprise Girl

That is what Hollywood now calls Betty Bronson, the girl who startled the world in her role of "Peter Pan."

First came the announcement that Betty Bronson, practically unknown, had been selected to play the most coveted role in the history of motion pictures.

That was surprise number one.

Number two came several months later. There were many in Hollywood who doubted the ability of an unknown player to put the part on the screen in a manner that would come up to the expectations of the public. When the picture was shown for the first time Hollywood was surprised—and admitted it. Her impersonation was a sensation.

But the surprise that Hollywood acknowledged is the greatest of all is that despite the glory showered upon this seventeen year old Cinderella, she remains the same, unspoiled girl she was the day she was chosen to play "Peter Pan."

Betty will be at the New Park on Friday and Saturday in "Are Parents People?"

PRES. DONNELLY GIVES HIS VIEWS ON PROPOSED MERGER OF ROADS

St. Paul, July 9.—Some of the outstanding facts in the history of the Northern Pacific were recounted briefly by Charles Donnelly, president, in an address at the luncheon given Tuesday noon at the Union depot by the Northern Pacific division, Railway Business Women's association.

Approximately 350 guests attended the affair. They were seated at long tables in the main dining room and extending out into the main lobby of the depot. At one table was seated veterans who have been in the service of the road for more than 30 years, headed by Jule M. Hannaford, former president of the road.

Mr. Donnelly touched on the difficulties encountered by the road at its beginning 50 years ago, when the first tie was laid at Carlton, Minn., and of the anniversary celebration in Carlton which was attended by Northern Pacific officials in February 1924.

In speaking of consolidation of roads, Mr. Donnelly made clear that if mileage is to be grouped, the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific ought not to be torn apart. He pointed out that plans proposed by the interstate commerce commission some five years ago remain the same.

"It is possible, I might say probable, that within the next few years there will be a consolidation of some of the northwestern mileage," Mr. Donnelly said. "But it is something we are not at present ready to deal with, as many obstacles must be overcome and the law must be radically changed before the first step can be taken. But when it does come you people of the road need not have the slightest fear that the Northern Pacific name will disappear from railroad circles."

Miss Ruth Rugg, president of the division, introduced Miss Ruth Simon, who was toastmistress. The Northern Pacific sextet entertained and M. M. Goodsell presented the division with a Northern Pacific banner, which will be exhibited on all railway public occasions.

Each table was marked with a bouquet of garden flowers, which were later sent to the Gillette hospital at Lake Phalen.

OPEN HONORS COME LATE TO BARNES

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, July 9.—There are always in the world of sports new characters around whom can't be built a new edition of the old sermon about "Try, Try Again!"

Long, lanky and likeable Jim Barnes is the most recent example to prove that it always comes to him who waits and tries hard enough.

Barnes made seven trips back to his native land in quest of the British open championship, the greatest prize a golfer can win. On his seventh attempt he succeeded.

It seemed that fate itself wanted to reward the perseverance of Long Jim because his chances were almost hopeless until MacDonald Smith blew up and made such a bad score on his last round that Barnes was pushed fairly under the crown.

Last winter, down South, Barnes was asked if he intended to enter the British championship, and he replied—"I guess I'll just have to keep on going over there until I win it."

The professional factor is so prominent in open golf that the question, in the United States at least, arises—"How much will it be worth to Barnes?"

The honor, of course, is great, but the title measured in dollars and cents may not be worth much to him, as it was to Walter Hagen, who has made a fortune out of his golf.

Barnes may be just as good a golfer as Hagen on a year's average and he may have just as many friends, but he lacks the personality and the natural color of Sir Walter and he hasn't the same faculty of selling himself that Hagen has. No other golfer with the exception of Gene Sarazen can sell himself like Hagen.

The same holds good in the case of Willie McFarlane, the new American open champion. McFarlane, a retiring fellow of the school-teacher type, will not make as much money out of the title as Hagen and Sarazen did.

Compared to Hagen and Sarazen in golf, Barnes and McFarlane are much like Hornsby and Sisler against Ruth and Cobb in professional baseball. There may have been better ball players than Cobb and Ruth but no players ever have made the money out of baseball that Ruth and Cobb have made. They knew how to sell themselves.

To the British golf world, the fourth American victory in five years in its most revered competition must have been distressing, but some consolation may have been derived from the fact that Barnes is a native Britisher.

VEAN GREGG, VETERAN HURLER, BACK IN HARNESS

WHEN HE FIRST RETIRED, INVESTED SAVINGS IN CANADIAN FARM

ABANDONED THAT AFTER 3 YEARS AND NOW WITH SENATORS

Sylvanus "Vean" Gregg, veteran pitcher, 40 years of age, is back in the major league, a member of the champion Washington club, in an effort to glean more money from the diamond game to recuperate his modest fortune which, invested in a Canadian ranch, is dwindling away. So writes F. C. Lane in The Baseball Magazine for July.

Born in the state of Washington, a big game hunter by preference, a lover of mountains and woods and streams, Gregg definitely severed his connection with professional baseball and determined to devote his energies exclusively to the life of a pioneer in the Canadian Province of Alberta.

Buys 480 Acres

There he purchased a farm of 480 acres. It was 13 miles from the railroad and from the nearest provision store. To a settler in that vast empire of the northwest, however, a mere distance of 13 miles suggests a neighborly nearness. Moreover, there were creameries and cheese factories in the land and cattle men and grain farmers who talked incessantly of a real estate boom in the valley of the Saskatchewan.

Gregg expended seven thousand dollars of his baseball earnings in buildings and equipment. He kept incessantly busy. Among other chores, he milked 20 cows. This gave his grip the tenacity of a steel vise. The word baseball was to him only an echo of that career to whose closing chapter his own hand had written finis.

Forgot Baseball

How the major league race progressed he neither knew nor cared. The local newspaper which he secured occasionally on his periodical visits to "town" devoted none of its meagre space to those far-off events of a remote distance. Only the supreme news value of the world's series filtered through its smudgy columns. And the pitcher who had once been rated as the greatest left-hander in the American league, would journey 13 miles to the general store to find out what club had won the new world's championship.

But the signing of a world peace brought no bonanza profits to Alberta farms. Rosy dreams of a comfortable independence faded before the drab realities of heavy costs and falling prices. And the bitter winds of winter which swept down from the Arctic circle and gripped that valley with an icy temperature of 60 degrees below zero, brought a chill to the spirits as well as the numb fingers.

Three successive years Gregg remained buried in his Alberta farm. Then the dwindling profits of his labors spurred him on to seek a new career in his old profession. The Seattle club of the Pacific Coast league was willing to give him a chance and they never regretted this accommodating spirit, for he made good from the first. Far from losing his effectiveness, his long lay-off had apparently cured the troublesome tendency to sore arm which had been the only blot on his previous bright record.

Ranch Loses Money

In the meantime, farming in Alberta went from bad to worse. Cattle that Gregg had purchased at $120 a head proved a decided loss when fed with the Braves.

with hay that was excessively dear. He saw not a few of his stock go at a ruinous loss for $10 a head. As a result of his serious reverses, he sold the major portion of his farm at a decided monetary sacrifice. More than ever it became imperative that he should begin life all over again.

With the bitterness of disillusionment in Canada came renewed hopes in his native state. Gregg turned his back upon Alberta and took up his residence at Seattle. There he demonstrated that he was still a winning pitcher, while in the off-season, in company with his brother, he operated a gas filling station which kept him moderately busy and gave him a living.

To prove that his success at Seattle was no mere propaganda, we may take the evidence of the records. They tell us that last year he won 25 games and lost 11. Moreover, he still retained his uncanny ability to defeat certain ball clubs which had been one of his most striking characteristics as a major league pitcher. Dopesters recall how he went for three straight years against the White Sox without losing a ball game. Four times he defeated Ed Walsh when the king of spit-ball pitchers was in his prime.

In similar manner, Oakland fell an easy victim to Gregg's deceptive curves. In his three years of pitching for Seattle his work against Oakland proved a series of unbroken triumphs. Not only did he defeat this unfortunate club, but he did so decisively. For example, he shut them out seven successive times.

Not the least of the extraordinary events of Gregg's career is the fact that he returns to the majors after an absence of seven years, and at the age of 40 years, as a member of a world's champion ball club. Although Washington won, however, in 1924, the team needed decided bolstering. This was all the more pronounced since Walter Johnson, the pitching mainstay of the club, threatened to sever his connections with the club. The management were constrained to seek for reinforcements and they specialized on veteran pitchers. They added no less than three such pitchers to their roster, namely Dutch Reuther, Coveleski and Vean Gregg.

One On John Bull

(By United Press)

London, (By mail).—British manufacturers and officials are much upset over the discovery just made that the Certificates of Honor presented last year to English exhibitors at the all-British Exhibition at Wembley were printed on American made paper.

No products other than those of British growth or British manufacture were permitted in the exhibit. In an apology just issued the committee states: "We selected the best paper offered us. We did not know it was American made."

CHICAGO WOMAN LEADS FIELD IN GOLF MEET

Mrs. Lee Mida and Mrs. E. T. O'Connor, Gary, Ind., were tied for second place. Mrs. Tracy shot an 86, three strokes over par.

Grimes, Brooklyn Hurler, Draws Ban From Heydler

New York, July 9.—Burleigh Grimes, Brooklyn Nationals' pitcher, was indefinitely suspended by President John A. Heydler of the National league for his argument with Umpire Pete McLaughlin in the second game that Gregg had purchased at $120 a head proved a decided loss when fed with the Braves.

SPORTSMEN MOUND MEETING.

CONCLAVE PROGRAM TENTATIVELY ARRANGED BY PAJODAN WILD LIFE LEAGUE

Plans for the 10th anniversary convention of the Minnesota Game Protective league to be held at Mound in July are under way, and a tentative program has been announced by the Pajodan Wild Life league which will entertain the organization.

The vanguard of delegates is expected to reach Mound July 22, and will begin to register at 2 P. M.

The first session of the convention will be held in the auditorium of the Mound Consolidated high school building at 10 a. m. July 23. Mayor Joseph Krause of Mound, a director of the state league, will welcome the delegates, and there will be a response by President C. H. MacKenzie.

The afternoon will be devoted to a trapshooting event to arrange for a handicap, or to a boat trip on Minnetonka with a fish dinner on one of the islands.

The meeting will convene at 9 a. m. July 24, and J. F. Gould, game and fish commissioner, will be first on the program. He will be followed by Dr. William T. Hornaday or Ernest Thompson Seton. There will be a trapshooting event in the afternoon, and entertainment in the evening.

Following a brief business session at 9 a. m. July 25, there will be a bait and fly casting tournament. The business of the convention will be concluded at 4:30 p. m., when the prizes and trophies will be distributed and there will be dancing and other entertainment in the evening.

JOHN HERTZ TO SELL HIS STABLES AND QUIT TURF

New York, July 9.—John Hertz, the Chicago taxicab magnate, is to retire from the sport of thoroughbred racing, it was learned at the Aqueduct course today. The increasing demands of his great business interests have led him to this decision; he is unable to get to the race courses to see his horses run.

In the Hertz stable here are seven 2-year-olds, besides Blue Moon, which won at Jamaica; Tick Tock, a winner last fall; Our Buddy, and Chitazong. There are also some yearlings in Kentucky. The horses in training are to be shipped to Kentucky to be sold, probably privately.

Tolson Sent Back To the Minors at Own Request

Cleveland, O., July 9.—President E. S. Bernard of the Cleveland American league today announced that Che Tolson, the young first baseman obtained from Nashville in the Southern association last week, had been returned to that club. His release was given at Tolson's request, who felt that he was not quite ready for the major league, Bernard said.
